Cleveland's Exposition
Wall Street Gypsy Ladies
Better Airplanes Wanted
Lightning Rods Work

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

THE NATIONAL Machine Tool Builders' exposition in Cleveland's auditorium is a concentrated demonstration of industrial genius and of the tools that have built prosperity and civilization.

Man differs from all other animals in that he is a tool-using creature.

Animals work with their bodies, the beaver with teeth and broad tail, the woodpecker with his beak, the mud wasp with her sting, putting stunned caterpillars in cold storage for her unborn children.

Man, with his brain, creates tools OUTSIDE of his body, then he harnesses the ox, horse, elephant, Niagara Falls, and the lightning to work those tools.

Cleveland's exhibition of the National Machine Tool Builders contains 300 carloads of machinery sent from eighty cities by 180 companies. These are machines that will turn thirteen inch guns, others measure a light wave, a million waves or so to the inch.

Three Gypsy ladies in Wall Street were fined $20, with option of ten days in the workhouse, for pretending to tell the future. That seems harsh in a street where any one of 1,100 brokers will tell you how to get rich for an eighth of one per cent.

The Gypsy ladies might have earned honestly all they got and more by advising bears only thus: "Keep away from an animal with long, sharp horns. Every time you cross his path you will go up in the air. This is no time or country for bears."

The army will open an air laboratory at Wright Field, near Dayton, Ohio, October 12. Secretary of War Davis and the President are to be congratulated on their plans to improve airplane designs.

What aviation needs is NEW IDEAS, increased efficiency and stability in airplanes and engines, and above all, ENCOURAGEMENT AND A PATIENT HEARING FOR INVENTORS, USUALLY PUSHED ASIDE.

Ninety-nine in a 100, perhaps 999 in 1,000 have ideas that are worthless, but the hundredth or the thousandth has the idea that the world needs.

Lightning struck a barn in Virginia, killed four persons and two mules, paralyzed a dog and stunned two men.

Modern lightning rods properly installed would have prevented that disaster.

Modern protection against lightning is included in the recent White House alteration. All around the balustrade above the

'Jack Will Win!' Says Estelle

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN

(Copyright, 1927, by International News Service)

Chicago, Sept. 20.—"Jack is about to make the supreme effort of his career.

"If he has the slightest doubt about winning he has not revealed it to me in any way.

"If he wins it will be glorious!

"If he loses, I'll be waiting for him—loving him more than ever, if that is possible, for there is nothing that makes man and wife cling together more than reverses."

Estelle Taylor, dark-eyed wife of Jack Dempsey, sat in her sumptuous suite in the fashionable Edgewater Beach hotel today and in an intimate interview revealed her thoughts and hopes on the eve of the championship battle between her stalwart husband and Gene Tunney, the champion.

She denied she was the "boss" of the family, denied that Dempsey was trying a "come back" because he "needed the money," denied that life in Hollywood had "softened up" Dempsey, denied Dempsey was a spender and that they entertained lavishly and expressed the confident hope that he would emerge victorious from his battle with Tunney.

"I'm excited, greatly excited, and a lump rises in my throat when I think of what might happen Thursday night," she said, her black eyes flashing.

"I'm not going to the fight. I'll

Girl's Battle for Love Is Told at Murder Trial

Lawrence, Sept. 20.—Pretty blonde Mary Cwickla, Leo Nolin's eighteen-year-old sweetheart, battling police in a room while Nolin made his escape by diving through a closed window, was pictured to the jury at the Griffin murder trial today.

The picture was drawn, as one to be proved, by Assistant District Attorney Fred P. Raymond in his opening address prior to taking of

HOLYOKE SIAMESE TWIN DYING FROM PNEUMONIA; SISTER'S LIFE IN PERIL

(Special Dispatch to Boston Evening American)

Holyoke, Sept. 20.—Pneumonia today threatens momentarily to take the life of Mary Gibbs, one-half of a pair of Siamese twins, joined to her sister, Margaret, since their birth fourteen years ago.

While she hovers on the brink of eternity, fighting for her life, breath by breath, her sister lies helpless but healthy in bed beside her.

2 LEGAL MOVES FAIL TO STOP BIG FIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The latest developments of interest in this fight-mad town today are:

1—Federal and Illinois courts deny petition for injunction to stop bout. One sought to prevent battle on ground that it desecrated Soldiers Stadium. The other claimed a previous contract with Jack Dempsey.

2—Bitter row starts over the selection of a referee in the offices of the Illinois Boxing Commission.

3—From present indications, the fight gate will not exceed $2,500,000. Rickard expected a $3,000,000 house and blames the radio for the lack of interest in the show.

4—Dempsey spends forenoon loafing. Predicts he will win by knockout in fourth round; weighs 198.

5—Stakes pulled at Tunney's camp as champion promises to give Dempsey a beating and win with ease.

6—Army of prohibition agents descend on city with orders to closely guard all places where liquor might be sold.

O'HEARN, EX-YALE STAR, FINED, BROTHER JAILED

"Charlie" O'Hearn of Brookline, Yale's famous all-round athlete of a few years ago, was fined $50 in Newton Court today for failing to stop his automobile on a policeman's signal, while his brother, Edmund, was sentenced to a month in the House of Correction for larceny of seven gallons of gasoline.

A girl of twenty, Miss Gloria Gilley of Boylston street, Newton Upper Falls, who was riding with the O'Hearns on the night of the alleged theft, was a witness for the police who charged Edmund with smashing the lock on a gasoline station pump to fill an empty "gas" tank.

Both defendants appealed the findings of the court and put up $300 bail each for appearance in Superior Court.

According to Newton authorities, "Charlie" O'Hearn was driving his sedan through Commonwealth avenue with his brother, Miss Gilley and several other passengers on the night of August 4, when the car ran out of "gas" at Walnut street.

MUST GET OUTSIDE JURY TO TRY HUSBAND-KILLER

Rumford, Me., Sept. 20.—The prosecutors of Mrs. Bertha Hall, confessed slayer of her husband, Horatio H. Hall, whom she shot, she says, to protect her children from his attacks, will never be able to obtain a jury in this county when the woman goes to trial in October because of the widespread sympathy for her, in the opinion of citizens here and the county prosecutor himself.

Scores of Dixfield folk, including millionaire lumbermen and mill owners and humble workers, stormed the local court when the 34-year-old woman, careworn and haggard, was arraigned and despite the efforts of court officers to

CRASH OF PLANE KILLS PILOT AND PASSENGER IN SECOND DERBY RACE

Long Valley, N. J., Sept. 20.—Richard E. Hudson of Marysville, Mich., piloting a plane in the national Air Derby, and his passenger, Jay Radike of St. Clair, Mich., were killed when the plane crashed in the woods two miles west of Long Valley.

Hudson died on his way to All Souls' Hospital in Morristown. The passenger was dead when a physician reached the machine.

The plane was the first starter from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., for Cleveland on the first leg of a 2,275-mile race to Felts Field at Spokane, Wash., in the Class A air derby being held in connection with the national air races at Spokane.

GIRL STABBED WHILE ON HER LUNCH-HOUR STROLL

Followed by three men while taking a stroll during her lunch hour, Miss Alice Peters, 15, of Main street, Charlestown, was stabbed in the shoulder by one of them today in Commercial street, North End.

Screaming for help, she ran back to the chocolate factory where she is employed and was treated by a nurse in the factory dispensary.

The men tried to "pick her up," the girl declared, but she could not account for the stabbing unless they were trying to frighten her into accompanying them.

The wound, which was in the left shoulder, was evidently made by a penknife. The girl was reported to be in a state bordering on hysteria.

Police of Hanover street division were summoned to the factory and obtained from her a complete description of the three men.

PILOT AND PASSENGER KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHES IN SECOND OF AIR DERBY RACES

Cleveland, Sept. 20.—R. S. Fogg f Concord, N. H., last to hop off rom Roosevelt Field, reached leveland at 12:25 p. m. He had C. . Marsten of Concord as passenger.

Fogg announced he would not eave for Chicago until the weather ot better. It was raining hard and stiff west wind was blowing.

Fogg said his plane went down ear Pleasureville, Pa., and landed bout 100 feet down the side of a liff. Residents of the village went his assistance and they aided him pulling the plane up the side of e mountain about a quarter of a ile for a new takeoff, after which e flew steadily to Cleveland.

The race today began at Roosevelt ield at 6 a. m., and the crash in hich Hudson and Radike lost their ves occurred two hours later.

Farmers estimated that the plane as about 350 feet in the air. One f them, who was milking when the lane passed over his farm, said: The engine stopped, then started nd stopped a second time, and the lane went into a nose dive, disappearing behind the trees."

Other farmers went looking for he plane about a half hour after it d disappeared. They found the nose buried a foot or two in the ground.

Radike was dead, but Hudson still breathed.

"We had to hack away part of the plane to get Hudson out," they said, "and then we had to carry him a quarter of a mile to the road, where we put him in an automobile and rushed him to All Souls' Hospital, Morristown." Hudson was dead when they reached the hospital.

The tragic elimination of Hudson's plane from the race left but 11 of the 15 starters roaring westward toward Cleveland.

Emil Burgin of Mineola, N. Y., was forced to fly back from New York to Curtiss Field, adjoining Roosevelt Field, because of trouble with the oil pump in his plane. Burgin said two hours would be required to repair the pump, but that he was hopeful of continuing the race later.

ARRIVE IN CLEVELAND.

E. E. Ballough of Chicago, piloting a Laird Commercial, with Charles Tickenson, 69 years old, and another passenger, was the first of the class A entries to reach Cleveland. They landed at 9:23 and left again at 9:30.

Two minutes later Pilot C. W. Holman and Thomas Lane of St. Paul arrived.

Following in rapid succession came Pilots E. H. Lee, N. B. Mamer, James B. Ray, John P. Wood, E. K. Campbell and Tex Rankin.

Other starters in the race today:

E. K. Campbell of Moline, Ill., who started at 6:01 with S. A. McGuiness of Moline as passenger.

E. W. Cleveland of Cleveland, O., at 6:02, with G. F. Wallace and F. H. Buff, both of Cleveland, as passengers.

C. W. Holman, 6:03, of St. Paul, Minn., with Thomas Lane, St. Paul as passenger.

E. S. Lee, Chicago, 6:06, with R. M. Hoffman, as passenger.

Frank M. Hawks, Houston, Tex., 6:09, with Jack Worthington, New York, as passenger.

N. D. Namer, Spokane, Wash., 6:10, with Bruce McDonald, Spokane, as passenger.

James S. Rae of Philadelphia, 6:11, with M. B. Hanscome as passenger.

Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore., 6:12, the only pilot who set out alone.

J. L. O'Donnell, Whittier, Cal., 6:13, with his wife, Gladys, as passenger.

L. T. Royal, Flint, Mich., 6:14, with Joseph Totten, Mineola, as passenger.

Pilot L. F. Hughes, Wheeling, W. Va., who failed to take off today from Cleveland in his Class B ship, announced he had decided to withdraw from the race.

Twelve Planes Resume Flight From Chicago

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 20 (I.N.S.). —Leslie Miller arrived here from Chicago at 9:56 a. m. and took off at 10:04 a. m. for Fargo, N. D. C. W. Meyer arrived at 10:05 and took off at 10:20.

Chicago, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The New York-to-Spokane air derby for class "B" planes was renewed here at 5:39¼ a. m., Central Standard Time, this morning, in a cold, drizzling rain, when plane No. 41, an Eaglerock, piloted by Leslie Miller, Des Moines, hopped off from the municipal airport for St. Paul, where the first 5-minute compulsory stop of the day's run will be made.

Following the first take-off, the planes hopped off regularly, at 2-minute intervals. C. W. Meyer was the first to follow Miller.

Pilot C. B. McMahan of Miles City, Mont., was the first of a belated group of class B planes to arrive in Chicago from Bryan, O. He was closely followed by E. W. Fleet of Hartford, Ct.

Tex Lagrone, Kansas City flier, reported missing, landed at Ashland, Pa., yesterday, he informed his wife in Kansas City by telephone.

The other pilots who landed here and took off today are Eugene Detmer, C. W. Meyers, W. H. Emory, J. S. Charles, E. G. Knapp, A. Litzenberger, K. R. Unger, R. R. Johnson, Jack Ashcroft, Mimmo Black and J. B. Sidowski.

Jack Story's entry, Gerald J. Smith, pilot, and Story, a passenger, arrived at 10:12.

Patrolman Peter Conlon declared he heard the sound of metal being smashed and arrived at a Socony filling station near the point in time to see the O'Hearn car drive away.

The policeman testified he shouted to the driver, but could not make him stop. He then gave chase in another automobile, but lost the race. However, he got the registration number.

The manager of the filling station, Willard W. Brown, testified he made a checkup the next morning after finding the lock on the pump broken, and seven gallons of gasoline was missing.

Miss Gilley told of an argument in the car over the question of obtaining a supply of gasoline, and said she heard the policeman shout as the car drove away. Somebody in the rear seat, she said, cried:

"He doesn't want you, Charlie, keep on going."

"Charlie" O'Hearn was one of the greatest all-round athletes in all Yale's athletic history. He was brilliant as a quarterback and had few equals as a college hockey player. He won eight varsity letters and was captain of the baseball and hockey teams in his senior year.

A broken leg incapacitated him for most of his final football season at New Haven, but even with this interruption to his career his glory on the gridiron was sufficient to make his name a subject of enthusiastic discussion whenever Yale men gather for the big games.

He is general manager of a large rubber factory at Hudson. His brother lives in Davis avenue, Brookline.

ONE OF HOLYOKE SIAMESE TWINS NEAR DEATH

The lives of both Mary and Margaret are at stake, in spite of the normal health of the latter, for eminent physicians, intently studying this amazing struggle for existence, declare that the death of Mary would drain the vitality of Margaret so that she, too, would succumb eventually.

Fever rages in the veins of the sick girl, whose temperature is 108. She has been ill a week and has responded only weakly to drastic treatment.

Her greatest help in the battle for life is the soothing words of her sister—her more-than-sister— who lies beside her. Repeatedly, according to the mother, Mrs. John R. Gibbs, Mary has courageously renewed her grim fight at the cound of the other's voice.

The scene of this life-and-death combat against the worst odds Nature can impose is the home of the Gibbs family at No. 14 Portland street.

BATTLE FOR LIFE.

The possibility of the well girl, Margaret, being jointd to a corpse should Mary die does not seem to worrk Margaret, according to her mother, but the horror of this eventuality is taking its toll on the nerves of the parent.

The mother fears that with fuller realization of her terrible fate the other girl will collapse and die as the other dies, even if surgical skill could find a means of keeping her alive.

Margaret's temperature is 99 but she shows no signs of pneumonia or any other ailment. She is normal, in the opinion of the attending physicians. Whether her slight increase in temperature is a reflection of her sister's fever, physically or by some unsolvable spiritual connection, they cannot determine.

It is the generally accepted opinion in medical circles that the death of one of a pair of Siamese twins means the rapid death of the other, too. What causes the death of the other they cannot say.

But the whole question is one in which the greatest medical skill in the world is in the dark.

Should an operation be performed as the first one is dying, as a possible means of saving the other?

Should an operation be performed as soon as death occurs?

Would not either operation kill the healthy twin?

Is the link that joins Mary and Margaret Gibbs, and every other set of Siamese twins, merely physical, or does the link so mystically entwine their natures, souls and bodies that one cannot live without the other half?

These are the questions which are puzzling the grave-faced doctors who sit by the bedside of the Gibbs twins in a sick room in which the heavy, short breathing of Mary constantly urges them to decide quickly what they must do.

Even should an operation be resorted to, before Mary dies, htey might be taking the life of a human who possibly could recover, they declare, and this makes their distressing problem all the more acute.

Mrs. Gibbs hopes and believes that her children will recover and resume the strange but healthy existence which has been theirs since, foredoomed forever to be joined in the flesh, they were ushered into the world.

Drs. George L. Kinne and E. P. Bagg are in constant attendance in the sick room and other local doctors are closely watching the case.

manded by Attorney-General Charles P. Sisson.

The police are seeking the woman's husband, George Savage, who was sought for questioning in connection with the famous robbery of $250,000 worth of stamps from the Pawtucket postoffice.

At the time of the robbery, Loretta Gallagher was questioned by police regarding her friends, one of them being Savage, to whom she is said to have been married two months ago.

A few days ago State police learned that a young couple of suspicious appearance were living at Barrington under the name of Mr. and Mrs. Walters. Yesterday State and local police went to the house and found the girl alone. They also found what is said by officers to be the most complete set of burglars' tools they had ever seen, together with a young arsenal, including guns and many cartridges.

The burglars' tools were up-to-date in every way, consisting of electric drills, bits, hack saws, taps, hammers and whatever else is needed by a housebreaker. Two stolen automobiles were also recovered, according to the police.

The young woman was taken to this city, and the Providence County Grand Jury being in session, Attorney-General Sisson presented the case in person. An indictment was handed down, charging Loretta with having burglar tools in her possession, and the attorney general asked that she be held in heavy bail.

The young woman's counsel, John L. Curran, protested that $15,000 was excessive for the offense charged. Sisson replied that he could not disclose all the information in his possession.

MARINES FIGHT NICARAGUANS; 3 ARE SLAIN

Washington, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—One American marine and one member of the Nicaraguan National Guard were killed and a second marine was fatally wounded in a fight yesterday between a detachment of 20 marines and 25 native constabulary and a force of about 140 members of the Salgado band.

The American legation at Managua, transmitting a report of the fight to the State department today, declared the bandits were said to have lost 20 killed and 50 wounded.

A relief column of marines and constabulary is on the way to the scene of the fight at Telpaneca from Pueblo Nuevo to prevent a possible second attack.

The dispatch said bandits had attacked the garrison of the town at 1 a. m. and that the fighting lasted until 4 a. m., when they withdrew.

ASHBY MAN WHO SHOT WOMAN GETS 5 YEARS

Oscar Nucat, 40, of Ashby, was sentenced by Judge Harold P. Nucat was accused of shooting Mrs. Gunilie Maki of Ashby and wounding himself in an attempt at suicide last July 28 at Mrs. Maki's home, where he once was a boarder.

Nucat acted as his own counsel, cross-examining witnesses, including Mrs. Maki, but declined to testify, saying: "The court may do what it sees fit with the case."

DECLARE ALMAN RIGISTERED AS MAN AND WIFE

Testimony that Hyman Alman, 70-year-old retired Brookline realty dealer declared he has been registered with Mrs. Celia Oxman of the West End as man and wife in a New York hotel, was given in Suffolk Superior Court today.

The testimony was given by his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Sherman of Hollow street, Brookline, and Sam E. Wasserman, School street, real estate dealer, in the hearing on Alman's petition to dissolve a trust on his estate of $42,000.

The trust is held by the aged man's sons, and the petition was filed by him on the ground that he was fraudulently induced to sign the trust in the fear that Mrs. Oxman, a 48-year-old divorcee, would sue him as a result of their trip to New York with her two daughters.

STAYED WITH DAUGHTER.

Mrs. Sherman on the witness stand denied that she had frightened or attempted to frighten her father into signing the trust. She declared she has an affectionate and friendly feeling for him.

She told of a shock he sustained about two years ago and contradicted previous testimony of Mrs. Oxman by testifying that the aged man stayed at her home during his illness. Mrs. Oxman had testified that she cared for Alman at his own apartment, and that he took her and her daughters to New York afterward as a reward.

Mrs. Sherman said her father was a frequent visitor to the Sherman home and that her husband, John, frequently gave him discarded suits, of which Alman was quite proud.

The witness said she first heard of Mrs. Oxman when her father came to her home and she heard

MAYBELLE GIMAN

HER DANCING WON HER MIGHTY FRIENDS

Isadora Duncan had the elite of Paris at her feet, while Maybelle Gilman, one of the most famous of showgirls and who married William E. Corey, steel magnate, was looked upon as a climber despite all her millions. Maybelle was first a friend of Isadora's, then jealous of her laurels. But the dancer never cared for the favor shown her; Maybelle fawned for it in vain. Miss Duncan's friendship with Ruth Saint Denis had a friendly rivalry tone. Ruth was a great admirer of Isadora's dancing but the Duncan girl feared Miss Saint Denis would imitate her.

By FRED TOYE.

Chapter 5

ISADORA'S theatrical engagement with Augustin Daly's traveling company amounted to little more than the dignity of a slight advance beyond the ranks of supernumeraries. It might almost have been classed as a place in the chorus.

In her Chicago interview with Daly, the dancer had expounded her early ideas of what the dance should be.

"I have the germ of an idea," she said. "An idea which will awaken the world to an intimacy with the art of the dance."

How revolutionary her idea was can only be estimated by looking back at the picture of the female costume of the late nineties; at the prevailing type of stage presentation; the costuming; scenic effects; the fashion of interior decoration; the restrictions imposed by convention upon the comings and goings of women and girls; the type of conversation tolerated in polite society.

DANCER'S SUIT AGAINST BEERY UNDER PROBE

Los Angeles, Sept. 20.—An official inquiry into the charges on which Juanita Montanya, Spanish dancer, based her $1,000,000 suit against Wallace Beery, film comedian, accusing him of twice attacking her and with being the father of her unborn child, was in prospect today.

The announcement of the impending investigation by the district attorney's office revealed that the affair first had been called to the attention of the authorities two weeks ago by Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and Beery himself. The film actor accused the dancer of threatening him and his employers with unwelcome publicity.

"Two or three weeks ago," the screen star said, "I was informed by executives of my employer that they had been visited by Juanita Montanya and that she had remarked upon the undesirability of publicity concerning me with the apparent purpose of extracting a large sum of money from the company.

"She was invited by them to another conference and was then confronted personally by me and told by all of us in very definite words that a demand for money would not be countenanced by any of us. The same day I referred the entire matter to the district attorney's office."

Peerage, Art, Steerage All Land From Polk

Carrying a record-breaking passenger list, headed by Baroness Natalie Gubanoff d'Evers, a Russian emigre, the Dollar liner President Polk docked at the Army Base today on her tenth round-the-world voyage.

The baroness is returning to New York for a second visit to friends, having been there a year ago.

Another interesting passenger was Miss Felicia Adams of New York, an interior decorator of note, who boarded the vessel at Genoa. She has worked on the Ritz Towers, Primrose House and the French Building in New York, also with private homes.

Miss Florence Fraser of San Francisco, who debarked at Boston with the others, has just completed a three-year course in pianoforte at Fontainbleau.

The Misses Elizabeth Moore and Kathryn Kenney of Cleveland returned from a tour of the Continent, both announcing their engagements to titled foreigners. Miss Moore claimed to have become engaged to a Belgian count and her friend to a viscount.

Also on board was Miss Myrtle Nelson Tobin, dramatic soprano, formerly of St. Paul, the first American girl to engage in concert work in Turkey. She gave a concert in Angora last March.

Probably the most popular passenger was Martha, a common or garden variety of cat, which made the round trip to Genoa with her owner, Miss Charlotte P. Spadaccini of Brooklyn. Miss Spadaccini, who made the trip with her mother, father, sister and brother, refused to leave Martha behind. The cat stood the voyage well.

Local passengers included Miss Sigrid J. Bagge, Boston; Donald Cameron, Cambridge; Miss Margaret F. Gill, Brockton; Mme. Rosa V. Johnson, Boston; Miss Katherine E. MacMurray, Waban; Mrs. Katherine M. Pitts, Weston; Miss E. F. Pratt, Boston, and Miss Marion E. Regnier, Newton Centre.

2 JAP CRUISERS REACH BOSTON TOMORROW

The Japanese cruisers Asama and Iwate, en route from Havana, Cuba, will arrive at Boston tomorrow for several days' visit. On the Asama, which is the flagship, is Rear Admiral O. Magano. The cruisers have 182 midshipmen aboard.

During the stay in Boston the visiting officers will be entertained lavishly. The first of these social events will be a dinner at Hotel Somerset tomorrow evening under auspices of Military Order of the World War.

After dropping anchor in the harbor, the flagship will be visited by Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews, commandant of the First Naval District, who will pay his respects to the Japanese admiral. Commandant Andrews will be accompanied by Captain William L. Littlefield of Battleship Utah, Captain H. D. Cook and Commander Leland Jordan. Later Admiral Magano will return the visit at Boston Navy Yard.

LEGION HEARS LEADERS URGE WORLD PEACE

Paris, Sept. 20 (I.N.S.)—From the same platform today three of the great military figures of the World War, General John J. Pershing, Marshal Foch and General Gouraud, military governor of Paris, joined together in a stirring plea for eternal world peace. They spoke at the second official session of the American Legion convention, a gathering that was transformed into a Franco-American love feast as World War leaders and other figures high in official life and public esteem pleaded an everlasting friendship between the two nations.

The Legionnaires, who gathered again in the grand hall of the palace, were still glowing with the warmth of the reception accorded their parade by Paris boulevardiers yesterday, and they attended today's session prepared to manifest their appreciation for everything French.

CHEER WAR LEADERS.

They literally tore off the roof of the palace with their tumultuous cheering for the French war heroes and for General Pershing as well, and once again the excitable Parisians enjoyed the spectacle of seeing and hearing a group of twenty thousand men more vociferous in their enthusiasm even than themselves.

Marshal Foch was the first speaker. A striking figure in his brilliant uniform with medals and decorations, he stood smiling on the speakers' stand until the ear-splitting applause had subsided.

The winning of the World War, Marshal Foch told the veterans, was due to "perfect understanding and co-operation among the allied leaders." These same qualities, he continued, would go far toward the ultimate goal of all humanity—peace, fraternity and industry."

Marshal Foch complimented the Legionnaires warmly on the strength and scope of their organizations.

FRENCH ARE GRATEFUL.

"You have placed the Legion on the upward march to right and justice," he declared. "You have opened a vast horizon of happiness to the world of industry, peace and fraternity. Where is the Frenchman who will not respond to such a call?"

General Gouraud spoke next. He paid a stirring tribute to the part played by America in the Great War.

"To imagine that victorious Frenchmen who have suffered so much from the war and still endure its heavy consequences can desire its return would be to lack either common sense or good faith.

"No one can forget, least of all mothers and wives, that without the entry of the Americans into the war, French blood would have continued to flow much longer.

"The remembrance of their losses, as well as their victory, begets in the French people their desire for peace and their will not to be invaded again.

URGES WORLD PEACE.

"And as the world is being stirred yet by the force of disorder and oppression, the friendship of the great nations that have fought with us for the same just cause appears still to be as necessary in peace as it was in war.

"As for we people of France, with our desire for peace and security, we feel eternal gratitude and affection for you who helped us to deliver the soil of our country from the invader, and mingled your blood with our own."

Thunderous applause greeted General Pershing as he stood on the rostrum to deliver his address to the assembled legionnaires.

"As fighting men," the General declared, "we believe that war should be rendered impossible at any future time.

"This thought of the abolition of war is filling the minds of thoughtful men everywhere. Men are wondering why the code of honor that prevails among individuals cannot be made to operate between governments. If stealing and lying are wrong and illegal between men, why not between nations?"

PERSHING LAUDS FOCH.

General Pershing was unusually warm in phrasing his gratitude for the magnificent reception which had been accorded the legionnaires in Paris. Marshal Foch he describes as "not only a great soldier, but a great man and a loyal friend."

"Only one cloud darkens this happy reunion," General Pershiing said. "We can still read tears in the eyes of the widows and orphans of France who have suffered a martyrdom as lasting as it has been cruel. There are one million widows in France, and two million orphans. Truly such woes appeal from tyranny to God."

The Legion convention, the General said, is not only a reunion, but the bringing together of two great peoples.

"The cultivation of mutual understanding and sympathy among nations such as exists between France and America, offers a true formula for the peace of the world," he said.

AMERICA MAY JUMP TARIFF ON FRENCH GOODS

Washington, Sept. 20.—France was officially informed today that the United States stands ready to increase import duties on French goods unless the discrimination against American products, under the new French tariff schedules, is removed.

This attitude was revealed in a brief note delivered to the French Foreign Office in Paris, in reply to the French rejection of the American proposal for a most-favored-nation commercial treaty.

It is understood here that if the French show a desire to continue negotiations over the tariff question, the parleys likely will be held in Washington rather than in Paris, as originally contemplated.

The new American communication marks a further effort to adjust matters on the basis of mutual most-favored-nation understandings.

There is little doubt that the note was desgined to make it plain to the French Foreign Office that the provisions of Section 6 of the American tariff act, which authorized discriminatory duties against countries which discriminate against the United States, would be invoked if no other way of meeting the situation raised by the application of maximum French tariff rates to American goods was to be found.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 2nd, at Home in Newton After Brilliant Season of Activities in Newport

AFTER A FLING AT THE SOCIAL WHIRL AS NEWPORT DOES it in early September, Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, and her lovely daughter-in-law, Mrs. Alexander Shaw, have departed from Aquidneck Isle's social stronghold. Mrs. Shaw, 2d, is back at "Boulder Farm," the Shaws' extensive country place in Newton, and Mrs. Alex Shaw (she was Miss Helene Ellsworth) is with her parents, the John Chess Ellsworths at Manchester.

ONE OF THE VERY BRIGHT SPOTS OF THE AUTUMN SOCIAL calendar, just now breaking into bloom for the debutantes, will be the dance the Robert Gould Shaws, 2d, give for the Alexander Shaws. Young Mr. and Mrs. Shaw's marriage was celebrated in Paris only last June and naturally all the Shaws and all the Ellsworths journeyed across the Big Pond for the momentous occasion. The honeymoon has been a glorious succession of gaieties in Paris and London, New York and the North Shore.

THEY HAVEN'T AS YET SET UP THEIR OWN ESTABLISHMENT. Plans for it are in the just-being-made stage, so the Autumn will be spent at "Boulder Farm" with the elder Shaws. Mr. and Mrs. John C. Ellsworth are to be in Boston for the Winter in order to be near the smaller Ellsworths still of the school age. The pretty daughter, Miss Phyllis, comes out probably in another year, and also probably will have a Boston first Winter.

SLOWLY THE MIGRATION FROM SEASHORE HOME TO TOWN or suburban place gathers momentum. Those so fortunate as to possess two and perhaps three or four establishments move from one to the other with the regularity of the season's progression, and thus extract from each its individual perfection. Mr. and Mrs. B. Nason Hamlin with their three young people have closed "Pirates' Point" down on Cape Cod, at Dennis, and are in Dedham again.

THE ARTHUR BLAKES are lingering in their pleasant Cohasset home long into the Autumn while Mrs. Blake brings to choice perfection her plans for the presentation of Miss Harriette Blake, her daughter, and of Miss Betty Blake, her niece. With two such attractive buds for its chief ornaments and at its helm such a genius for originality as is Mrs. Blake the party should and will be exactly the sort of thing to delight the heart of a bud.

MR. AND MRS WALDO H. BROWN find life in their pretty little Harwichport cottage much to their liking during September's proverbial Cape Cod mildness. The Browns and their small family occupy a charming waterfront place, just a stone's throw from the Summer establishment of Mr. and Mrs. Gray of Detroit, parents of Mrs. Brown, who was Miss Frances Gray. Of Winters the Brown home is in Lime street in Boston.

THE NAME of Robert Gould Shaw, recently added, lends its weight and dignity to the list of sponsors Leighton Rollins has enrolled for his "Try-Out Theatre" venture. The Shaws' country place, a rambling farmstead where Wellesley meets Dedham, lies very near to the broad acres belonging to the Edward Hastings Wiswall estate on which is situated the erstwhile coachhouse, now converted to artistic usage in the Little Theatre movement. Mr. Rollins has a list of sponsors most impressive.

MUSSOLINI LAUDS I. N. S.; GREETS HEAD OF SERVICE

Rome, Sept. 20 (I.N.S.).—Premier Mussolini today received M. Koenigsberg, president of International News Service, in prite audience, and congratulated Mr. KoKenigsberg upon the inauguration of an International News Service report to Italian newspapers. The Premier conversed cordially with Mr. Koenigsberg for 20 minutes, expressing his satisfaction and pleasure with the type of news which International News Service has been furnishing to Italian newspapers. He said he welcomed this organization as a provider of news for Italian readers.

ST. STEPHEN'S CHURCH NOVENA THURSDAY

The Rev. James MacGuiness of Marblehead will be the preacher next Thursday, the second day of the novena of Thursdays in honor of St. Theresa at St. Stephen's Church, "The Shrine of The Little Flower of Jesus in Boston."

The devotions are scheduled at 12:20 noon, 5:20 P. M. and in the evening at 7:45. Father MacGuiness will preach at the 5:20 and 7:45 devotions.

The pastor, Rev. Charles J. Ring, has engaged diocesan priests to preach throughout the novena. There will be special bus service before and after devotions to Union and Haymarket stations.

COSGRAVE, DE VALERA HAVE 55 SEATS EACH

Dublin, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—President Cosgrave's Free State Government and Eamon De Valera's Fianna Fail party, its principal opponent, were even with 55 seats each on the basis of returns today from the parliamentary election, with 10 seats still to be determined. The standing of the other parties was: Labor, 12; Independents, 12; Farmers, 6; National League, 2; Larkinite Communist, 1. This was generally figured as giving the government group 72 seats in the new Dail Eireann against 70 for the opposition.

Danish Sea Artist Dies

Skagen, Denmark, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Michael Ancher, noted Danish painter of sea life, is dead here. He was 73 years old.

URGES STATE TO EASE UP ON LIGHT CO.'S

A change in the law to eliminate the provision under which gas and electric light companies contribute to the support of the Public Utilities Commission, a body which supervises and regulates their rates, was advocated today at a hearing before the commission by Charles S. Pierce, vice-president and counsel for the New England Telephone Z Ttlegraph Company.

The Legislature directed the commission to investigate and report on the advisability of repealing the law calling for such contributions.

As the law stands the light and gas companies pay a portion of the maintenance charges, whereas the transporation companies and the telephone company do not.

As a quasi-judicial body, Pierce said, the commission should not be open to the charge that its decisions are biased because "you are partly supported by these utilities."

O nthe other hand, Representative Frank W. Eaton of Brockton claimed the law should be amended to include all utilities. He saw no reason why all companies should not be required to pay for any service rendered by the State.

GOVERNOR SMITH ESCAPES UNHURT IN TAXI CRASH

New York, Sept. 20 (I.N.S.).—Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York narrowly escaped injury when a taxicab in which he, Mrs. Smith and two friends were riding, was in collision with another taxicab. The Governor and his party were returning from the Radio World's Fair when the accident occurred. No member of the Governor's party was hurt, but two passengers in the taxicab sustained bruises and a shaking up.

Can a fashionable shoe really be comfortable?

Frankly, we say that it's entirely a matter of perfect fit—and very few shoe stores have the wide variety of styles, widths and sizes to offer pretty shoes to women who must also have comfortable shoes.

But as you already know, the Coward Shoe Store is quite a "different" shoe store. Here you can get smart shoes—in your size, in your width, in the particular style that you favor most. And they'll be comfortable, as all Coward shoes are.

'CAL' WILL NOT CALL EXTRA SESSION

Washington, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—A definite decision against a special session of Congress in advance of its regular December meeting date has been reached by President Coolidge.

All of the information reaching the President is said to indicate that the Mississippi flood situation can be handled as effectively at the regular session as by convening in advance.

Relief funds on hand are adequate, Secretary Hoover has reported, to take care of the situation until after January 1. Moreover, it was said, engineers studying the flood prevention plans will find it difficult to get all of their data and studies compiled for Congress to act upon even by December.

200 MILLIONS FOR CONTROL OF FLOODS

Washington, Sept. 20 (I. N. S.).—Secretary of Commerce Hoover today expressed the belief that appropriations aggregating between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 would be required for Mississippi valley flood control work during the next ten years.

Shoot 2 Dead as Vare's Power Is Given Test

Pittsburgh, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The deaths of two men, shot during pre-election disorders here, and minor disturbances in polling places today marked the progress of the primary in Pittsburgh.

George Faber, wounded Friday by automobile gunmen who invaded the Strip District, notorious for election disorders, and John Roman, shot in the Oakland section Sunday, died today. Two election officials were arrested in connection with Faber's death.

Police reserves patrolled many districts in an effort to prevent clashes. Shortly before the polls opened an automobile, carrying a banner signaling the candidacy of a constable, rushed through several districts, the occupants firing pistols.

A free-for-all fight developed in one precinct, resulting in two arrests.

Test of Vare's Power Looms in Philadelphia Election

(By the Associated Press)

New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania went to the polls today in local elections, some of them involving issues of national interest.

Municipal primaries in Philadelphia were generally regarded as testing the strength of William S. Vare, Republican Senator-elect, whose seat is challenged on the grounds of alleged campaign corruption. Vare support was behind Harry A. Mackey, city treasurer and Vare's campaign manager, against former Mayor J. Hampton Moore, independent candidate for the Republican nomination for mayor. Robert V. Bolger and Thomas A. Logue sought the Democratic nomination.

Elsewhere in Pennsylvania issues were chiefly of local interest, with excitement running high in Pittsburgh, where police with tear gas and riot guns were on patrol to prevent disorder.

In New Jersey the vote was upon five proposals to amend the Constitution, one providing election of the Governor every four years in presidential years. This has been attacked by the Democrats as a Republican move to swamp opposition at times when the farm vote is out in strength.

Interest in New York was confined to contests for nomination of 18 candidates for State Assembly.

DAUGHTER OF PASTOR HAS INFANT PARALYSIS

Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 20 (A.P.)—Three more cases of infantile paralysis have been reported to the board of health during 24 hours, making a total number of 63. Among the cases reported was that of Sherbrooke Yates, 10-year-old daughter of Rev. John H. Yates, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church here.

The others are Helen Therrin and Pauline Burke, six.

SOFT COAL WAR ISN'T COSTING N. E. A NICKEL

Not a nickel is coming out of the pockets of Massachusetts consumers on account of the present labor dispute between the owners and miners in the soft coal fields in Illinois, and Ohio.

Officials of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life brought this out today in commenting on the strike which has been going on since April 1, the longest of its kind in the history of the bituminous industry.

Steadiness of the soft coal prices is attributed by the commission to the foresightedness of New England users in stocking up with the commodity when it became apparent that a war was near.

"Heretofore the industries of the State, and in the case of hard coal strikes the householders, were caught with empty bins and paid the price to the tune of thousands of dollars," the commission pointed out. "But this time the consumer, profiting from past experiences, made sure of the height of the home pile before actual trouble broke out. Now the worrying is being done exclusively by the contending forces in the fields."

Statistics of the department show that 16,000,000 of the 21,000,000 tons annually used by New England of bituminous had been received up to August 31. With five months to go, it was stated, the additional 5,000,000 tons can be readily secured from non-union sources.

BIT OF SNAP IN AIR TONIGHT FOR HUB

Coincident with the official departure of Summer and the arrival of Autumn on Thursday, the local weather bureau predicts the arrival hereabouts of brisk winds and clear skies.

The storm area control north of Lake Huron for the past four days still stubbornly holds its position to threaten New England with more showers, but the promised fair weather is expected to dislodge the disturbance tonight.

Killing frosts were reported today in Montana, the Dakotas and Western Nebraska as a cool wave advanced southeastward from the Rockies, but officials here doubted the chill would affect the Atlantic seaboard even if the outermost lip of the wave lapped the coast.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Wednesday; somewhat cooler tonight; moderate shifting winds, becoming fresh westerly.

HOTEL CHIEF'S WIFE WINS RENO DIVORCE

Reno, Nev., Sept. 20 (I.N.S.).—Charging cruelty and saying that her husband's affections hand wandered since 1922, Mrs. Ada S. Kincaid, wife of James Leslie Kincaid, was freed of marital bonds here today. Kincaid, who is president of the American hotels, denied the charges, but did not contest the suit.

"I AM NOBODY," WRITES TEACHER AS HE DIES

New York, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Leaving a fantastic note garbled in Latin, Frederick Gastler, a teacher of languages, today committed suicide in a furnished room by inhaling illuminating gas through a rubber tube which he had fastened to his lips with adhesive tape.

The note, apparently written as death approached, read in translation:

"I am nobody. I never was anybody. I am now a turnip and can be carved into a gourd. Things seem to be better."

Apparently the writer died before he had finished all he had intended to write. Translators believed the curious reference to the gourd and turnip to have been taken from an early Roman philosopher's opinions on what happens to the soul after death.

TEACHER MYSTERIOUSLY SHOT IN PARKED CAR

Wells, N. Y., Sept. 20 (I.N.S.).—State police and county authorities today were investigating the mysterious shooting last night of Grace Waltins, twenty-two-year-old school teacher of this place. Miss Waltins is in a hospital with gunshot wounds in the back of her neck and head. She is expected to recover.

With Grant Richards, Wells youth, Miss Waltins was seated in a parked automobile last night. Suddenly gunshots rang out and the girl screamed as she found she had been shot.

GERMAN FLIERS OFF TO U. S. BY WAY OF JAPAN

Cologne, Germany, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Balked by adverse weather conditions in his plan to fly to the United States across the Atlantic, but still determined to get there even if it means flying more than halfway round the world, Lieutenant Otto Koennecke, German war ace, today started for America by way of the Orient in his Caspar biplane "Germania."

Hopping off at 2:22 p. m., Lieutenant Koennecke was accompanied by Count George Cedric Solms-Laubach, his financial backer, and Johannes Hermann, expert radio operator.

The takeoff was delayed for four weeks. The aviators first had planned to go directly west across the Atlantic, but weather conditions made it necessary for them to plan a flight by way of the Orient, the first scheduled stop being in Angora, Turkey.

The rest of the route that has been planned will follow mainly that of the American round-the-world plane "The Pride of Detroit" through India to Japan, but thence to the United States by way of the northern route to the Aleutian Islands and then down the coast to San Francisco.

The Germania's technical equipment includes 56 tin cans of various sizes filled with gasoline for emptying into the main tanks, a pistol for firing red and white skyrockets and a rubber boat similar to that used by Commander Richard E. Byrd.

Lieutenant Koennecke's only mascot is a knitted woolen doll given him at the Tempelhoefer Field, near Berlin, some time ago by a strange lady.

His most treasured keepsake on his flight is a photograph of his wife and three children. The plane also carries thermos bottles for hot and cold coffee, and a supply of sandwiches and some chocolates.

Son of Woll Married

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 20 (A.P.)—Willard Matthew Woll of Chicago, son of Matthew Woll, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, was married today to Virginia Davis Delorey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Delorey of Maple street.

SLAIN DOCTOR'S WIDOW SEES HIM BURIED

Hammonton, N. J., Sept. 20 (I.N.S.).—With authorities admittedly puzzled in their investigation into his death, Dr. William Lilliendahl, seventy-two-year-old narcotic specialist was buried today in Greenwood Cemetery near the remains of the two other famous murder victims—Albert Snyder of the Gray-Snyder plot and Rev. Edward Hall of the Hall-Mills mystery.

Released on $25,000 bond as a material witness after four days of questioning, Mrs. Gertrude Lillendahl, forty-two, wife of the slain physician, accompanied her husband's remains to the grave.

She collapsed before his body at the morgue, where she was taken to undergo the formality of identifying the body.

SUSPECT MURDER PLOT.

Meanwhile Cameron S. Hinkle, Atlantic County prosecutor, declared that while accusing no one specifically, he was pursuing the investigation on the theory that Dr. Lilliendahl was the victim of a plot and that the motive for his murder was not robbery.

Mrs. Lilliendahl has contended from the first that the doctor was slain while protecting her from Negro thugs during a motor trip near their Vineland home.

Latest developments in the investigation today centred around the questioning of Willis Beach, fifty-three, poultry farmer and a neighbor of the Lilliendahls. He denied any intimacy with the Lilliendahls, such as requesting them for money or writing Mrs. Lilliendahl.

MYSTERIOUS GIRL NAMED.

Captain William J. Carter of the State troopers, when asked concerning Beach, said, "as far as I know, he has nothing to do with the case."

A mysterious "Peggy Anderson" was drawn into the case today when Prosecutor Hinkle admitted this name had figured in certain letters in his possession which may have a bearing on the case.

Son Frees Parents By Admitting He Slew Child

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Having freed his father from suspicion of being an accessory to the slaying of six-year-old Kathleen Forest by confessing that he had not only killed the child, but secreted the body in a vacant house here, where it was found, Lyle Messner faced arraignment on a first degree murder charge today.

Held as accessory to the slaying since their son was arrested Saturday at Rock Island, Ill., whence he had fled after the crime last Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Messner were released from jail last night, following his confession.

The youth made his full confession after overhearing from a prisoner in an adjoining cell state that they were being held.

It Pays to Save

New York, Sept. 20.—Annd now another thrift story. There's $2,539,600 in the bank for savings, the outgrowth of a $100 0deposit in 1819 and a $5 deposit in 1820.

EX-CHIEF DYER OF REVERE IS RECOVERING

Former Police Chief John J. Dyer of Revere, who was injured severely Sunday in a fall on a bath-house floor following a swim off Ocean avenue, will recover, according to physicians who examined him today at his home, No. 5 Emmett terrace, Revere.

The former chief sustained a severe cut on the head and it was at first feared he had a fractured skull. Doctors today found no evidence of a fracture or concussion of the brain. Dyer was removed from office some months ago on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer. He appealed and is soon to have a hearing in Chelsea District Court.

DANGER DAYS!

Stored-up energy will increase his chances!

ARE your youngsters fortified against the Danger Days to come? Are their bodies prepared for a battle that may confront them any day? Danger Days are ahead. Preparation days are now.

Danger Days have danger signals. Sniffly noses, sore throats, coated tongues, finicky appetites are nature's signals flashing you a warning that your children's resistance is low — that Danger Days are ahead.

The germs in the air are looking for such signals. They know when to strike. Give your boys and girls the reserve strength to resist — to fight back — to win.

Healthy bodies are safe bodies

Health comes from sunshine, fresh air, sound sleep, vigorous exercise, and above all — nourishing food. The foods your children eat are the building materials of which their growing bodies are made. Healthy bodies cannot be made of poor materials. Active, growing bodies need more than plenty of food! There are Danger Days ahead. They need the right kind of food. It must contain the vital elements for making strong bones, sound teeth, firm flesh, red blood, and worlds of energy for tomorrow. Who knows — tomorrow may be the Danger Day! If any single vital element is missing from the food of boys and girls, no amount of fresh air, exercise or sleep can supply it. What are these vital elements? Where can they be found? Every mother owes it to her children to know.

Whole wheat builds resistance

When nature conceived the grain of wheat, she created a spark of life. She crowded into the whole wheat berry the very food elements essential to life and growth. In Ralston, the whole wheat cereal, children get the things which bodies must have to fortify them against the Danger Days to come — for none of the vital elements of whole wheat have been removed in making Ralston.

Ralston will give your youngsters the calcium and phosphorus for building sturdy bones and hard white teeth — the proteins that will make firm solid flesh — the iron that makes red-blooded boys and girls—carbohydrates for energy—the bran that insures normal elimination—and the vitamins of life and growth.

Let Danger Days come — the Ralston boys and girls will be ready for them!

Use the Danger Days Coupon

We have a most important new booklet for you, that every mother should read. It tells all about Danger Days — how you can recognize them — how you can fortify your boys and girls against them. It is 32 pages fully illustrated. Send for it. It may mean warding off many Danger Days!

The coupon will bring your complimentary copy, and also a unique novelty for the children called the "Magic Blackboard."

'WHAT A MAN' IS BRIGHTEST OF FARCES

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WHAT Mr. Al Woods was pleased to designate as a "difficulty in three acts," finally, under adroit manipulation by Lynne Overman and a few fellow players, turned itself into a gorgeous farce of most engaging quality. That, in a brief span of words, tells the story of the coming of "What a Man" to the Wilbur and its reception by an audience plainly out for a good time and making the most of it.

Lynne Overman

The natural inclination of Mr. Woods for boudoir complications probably tempted him into this venture. In any event, "What a Man" is the old bedroom farce ironed out and refined—just as funny as any of the splurges of a half-dozen years ago, but lacking the moral discolorations. Although drawn from the French of T. Mirande and Mouesy-Eon, the unusual international blush was missing. Happily enough, good rippling fun occupied the time generally given up to doubtful, if not absolutely questionable, situations.

Reformation may, or may not, have any place in the operating plans of Al Woods, but certainly it would prove a great stimulation to theatre going if he could send along another "What A Man" to encourage the faithful. One thing is positive—the French know their farce and have the talent to mould it into dramatic form. A brand new wrinkle in domestic tribulation gave Mr. Overman and his band of associate toilers much more than an even break with an audience demanding laughs. There was an abundance of rollicking fun crowded hard upon players well able to turn it to good account.

The complications were manifold and riotously funny—and there was not even a glimmer of taint. Even the strange spectacle of two husbands of the same woman contending for special boudoir privileges aroused no suspicion of salacious drama. It was simply a preposterous situation admirably administered by nimble stage folk. Surely Mr. Woods has seen the light and is seeking new and profitable lanes of travel.

An excellent company took "What A Man" in hand and coddled it into seething, laughing entertainment. Mr. Overman, of course, gave talents that were more than adequate; Kenneth Hill fumed and fretted as a doubtful husband and never failed to act the part. For the women, Lee Patrick held close to familiar stage-lady tradition and escaped disaster by deft acting. For the sub stratum of comedy May Vokes, as a comedy servant, renewed acquaintance with local playgoers. Others notably busy during the evening were Ruth Lyons, home bred and lovely; Winnifred Kingston, Lennox Pawle and Clay Clement, from whose toil there was turned up everything from scraggly snickers to broad guffaws.

Anyway, there never were more first class, highly respectable laughs crammed into a bedroom farce.

ELKS ROOF SHOW WILL GIVE FIGHT RETURNS

As an added attraction of the Elks Roof Garden Revue on Thursday night, arrangements have been made to announce a radio blow-by-blow description of the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

The details of the contest will be given direct from ringside through a national hook-up of stations.

Patrons of the eleven o'clock show will be in time for the returns without missing the usual entertainment.

Movie Stars Flock to Dempsey Fight

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Well, I arrived in Chicago this morning, my former home town. And I want to tell you I almost had to get down on my knees on Broadway to get a reservation on the trains. That is the way New York expects to travel to the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

While New York is not so pro-Dempsey as Hollywood, among the theatrical and motion picture circles the betting is all in favor of Hollywood's Jack. Gene Tunney, of course, has some staunch admirers, but most of his boosters are in circles apart from the theatrical world.

You would be surprised at the business engagements being arranged in movieland so that Chicago is included in the itinerary. Ben Lyon is starting West the day before the fight. Rosetta and Vivian Duncan opened "Topsy and Eva" in Chicago yesterday.

Mabel Normand

Lew Cody is coming East on business connected with his vaudeville trip and he and his wife, Mabel Normand, will stop en route in Chicago.

Sam Wood has finished Marion Davies' picture and is headed Eastward on a vacation. Tom Gallery and Zasu Pitts have bought ringside seats, and so has Dorothy Dwan and Larry Semon.

At a dinner party given by Richard Rowland the other evening, Henry King, who was one of the guests, stated that he would have business in Chicago next Thursday. Joseph Schenck also has an engagement to watch the fight. He was a guest at the Rowland dinner. Winfield Sheehan will find it necessary to see how the Fox company is running its business in that town, and so on and on.

I have just learned that they do not like women reporters in the press box at prize fights. So I have decided to ask Mr. Tunney and Mr. Dempsey if I can't be in the ring so I can get a good story on the fight.

WHILE I am on the subject of Henry King, he told me that his first picture under his new contract with United Artists will be "The Darling of the Gods." The selection all came about in a most amusing way. He said to Joseph Schenck,

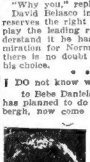
"Who will direct 'The Darling of the Gods?'"

"Why you," replied Mr. Schenck.

David Belasco in selling the play reserves the right to say who shall play the leading role, but as I understand it he has tremendous admiration for Norma Talmadge, and there is no doubt that she will be his choice.

* * *

I DO not know what is happening to Bebe Daniels' sky story. She has planned to do a feminine Lindbergh, now come comes word that her next to follow "She's a Sheik" is "Miss Jockey," with Clarence Badger directing.



Bebe Daniels

I am interested in that Lindbergh story since Bebe and I talked it over and decided it was just the right time to put on such a picture. If Bebe write or wire me, however, all will be forgiven.

Not a word from her since I left California. My address, in case she wants to know, is in care of the Hearst papers in any city where I happen to be. I am in Chicago until Friday or Saturday.

IF you do not believe Hollywood is interested in its movies people, listen to this one. An advertisement appeared in the paper that Jean Hersholt would direct the orchestra at the Hollywood Bowl concert while certain scenes of "The Symphony" were being filmed.

Although it was just one of the regular concerts and not an unusually good program either, the Bowl had the biggest crowd in its history. As soon as Hersholt finishes "The Symphony," he wil lbegin work on "The Braggart," based on a stage play. The stage play idea comes direct from Carl Laemmle, who wired his executives to stock up on suitable plays for Hersholt, who promises to be one of Universal's best bets.

EVER so often there is a rumor of a reconciliation between John Gilbert and Leatrice Joy. And this comes now in spite of the fact that John is Greta Garbo's devoted cavalier. My informant says that John Gilbert is a frequent caller at Leatrice Joy's home.

Leatrice Joy

If you ever saw Leatrice Joy the second, you would not blame him for wanting to become acquainted with his daughter. Of course, that old and trite expression, "A little child shall lead them," often has its effect.

ONCE a film man, always a film man. Here we have Walter M. Greene, formerly vice-president of Paramount and for a long time inactive. Now he is returning to Hollywood with plans to produce pictures. He has commissioned Howard Estabrook, also a pioneer in the business, to write a story and continuity for the first production. A man may be out in this business but he is never down. Apologies to the Salvation Army.

MOTHER'S boy gets another job. Who is mother's boy? Well, that's a foolish question. He is the wistful-eyed lad, Barry Norton, who played a part in "What Price Glory." This was small but unforgettable role.

Now he has been given the juvenile lead in "Balaoo," Edmund Lowe's next picture for Fox. Fox believes in keeping all their discoveries in the family.

White House roof, sharp, short, copper points stand at close intervals, connected by a copper cable, the whole system being connected with the earth, also by copper conductors, buried deep enough in the ground to reach perpetual moisture.

Such lightning rods give real protection. Insurance companies recognize that in lower rates for factories thus protected. Old-fashioned, badly installed, cheap lightning rod construction is worthless or even dangerous.

The University of Chicago publishes "An American Translation of the Old Testament," a thing not needed, since all changes must be for the worse. Let Chicago University persuade its young men and women to read Job and Isaiah at least fifty times in the King James version. That would be good work.

Dr. Hardin, learned Georgian, president of the American Electrotone Research Association, says man is a combination of electrical impulses, affected by electronic energy sent out by the sun and distant stars.

Man is also moved by mechanical levers, which are his legs, and sustained by a chemical laboratory, his stomach. But how will the scientist explain THOUGHT? There is the rub. Anything but that may be explained mechanically. Thought never will be mechanically explained.

Prohibition authorities will cut down the supply of industrial alcohol, which may help. Prohibition authorities would be amazed to know how many "varnish factories" have sprung up since prohibition came in, and how many varnish factories, still busy, have stopped making varnish. The alcohol that government allows them to purchase is made into a product that will eat through any varnish and remove the lining of any mucous membranes.

HUB FAVORITE AT ORPHEUM

Pauline Frederick is seen in her home town again, this time as the mother in a domestic drama called "The Nest" at Loew's Orpheum.

The picture reveals her as the same brilliant actress she has always been. Playing the role of a mother who must fight to hold her children safe from the temptations of the modern world, she reveals a rare understanding of this exacting role.

"The Nest" is essentially a Parisian drama, though its emotional appeal is world-wide. Supporting Miss Frederick is a notable cast that includes Holmes Herbert, Jean Acker, Ruth Dwyer, Wilfred Lucas and Reginald Sheffield.

Ezra Buzzington's Rube Band heads the vaudeville. This act comprises a group of "rustic revelers," whose mirthful antics won them a major portion of the day's applause. It is one of the best acts seen at the Orpheum in a long time. Another outstanding performer is Charles Olcott, who presents "a comic opera in ten minutes."

GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL WILL GO FISHING

Members of the Governor's Council and of both branches of the Legislature will be the guests tomorrow of Representative William H. Hearn of East Boston and the King Philip S. S. Company on an all-day sail and deep-sea fishing trip.

The boat will leave T wharf at 10 a. m. and will return at 5:30 p. m.

'IS HE GUILTY' THRILLS AT MAJESTIC

"Is He Guilty," a new mystery drama offered by the Messrs. Shubert, kept an audience at high tension last evening at the Majestic where it was given its metropolitan premiere. The play was adapted by Elmer Rice from its original German version, authored by Dr. Rudolph Lothar and Paul Rosenhaven. While the piece involved such controversial questions as capital punishment, justice and the power of circumstantial evidence to impose the extreme penalty, it did not sermonize. Good drama and "good theatre" were the authors' intentions, and both these qualities appeared in abundance.

Mildred Florence

A novel presentation of a second act courtroom scene placed the audience in the jury box where, in motionless fascination, it received the impassioned pleas of the attorneys and the solemn charge of the black-robed judge.

The plot held the attention at every turn. To show to the world by ridicule the fallibility of circumstantial evidence a prearranged hoax for the district attorney was trumped up. When the alleged murderer would be sentenced, the "victim" must calmly enter the courtroom, announce himself and make a laughing stock of the state's case. But in the interests of turbulent drama, the scheme went wrong, and an anguished young man found himself desperately fighting for his life.

Walter Gilbert, former favorite of the St. James stock company, was heartily applauded in the role of the condemned man; Jerome Lawler, as the State's attorney, read his lines with vigor and authority; Mildred Florence charmingly played opposite Mr. Gilbert; Clarke Silvermail was suavely amusing in a role that vanished from the action all too soon; Margaret Douglass made the utmost of a smaller part, and John Davidson gave an easy voice to the role of the defense attorney.

"Is He Guilty" had the added charm of moments lightly given to honest comedy that gave no intimation of being hauled in by the ears. The play is well staged, skillfully acted, the audience enjoyed it and was thoroughly absorbed.

Continuing Shows

PLYMOUTH—"Broadway." A drama of red hot doings along America's principal highway.

COPLEY—"Murray Hill." A comedy by Leslie Howard that appears to have caught the town.

COLONIAL—"The Merry Malones." Mr. Cohan returns to the stage in his own musical revue. The last week.

SHUBERT—"My Princess," an operetta. Hope Hampton displays her talents as an artist of the speaking and singing stage.

TREMONT—Eddie Dowling in "Honeymoon Lane." Colorful musical comedp. Lively tunes and enjoyable hilarity.

HOLLIS—"The Barker." A play of carnival life in the Middle West, with Walter Huston as the principal contributor.

'BARE FACTS' IS SMART SHOW AT GAYETY

In the year's series of burlesque productions on the Columbia "Wheel," "Bare Facts" at the Gayety takes prominence because of its lavish costuming, its brilliant light effects and its many alluring vistas of beauty, both artificial and natural. The chorus of dancing girls are adept and physically alluring, they dance in unison with clock-like precision and give to the show a real Broadway revue atmosphere.

Lena Daley

Lena Daley, the featured player, is seen in many displays of physical and eye-filling charms. Tessie Sherman is lithe as a fawn and a born comedienne. Gloria Carpentier, prima donna; Gladys Dale, an attractive leading woman, and Gertrude O'Berion, who plays "kid" roles, are all talented and well cast.

The comedy is in capable hands, with Jack "Smoke" Gray, Harry Feldman and Joe Yule mixing their merry nonsense in laughable potions.

"Fine Feathers" brings the first part of the performance to a gorgeous finish with chorus and principals costumed in feathers, backed by a feather curtain and filling the stage with a riot of color. Truly, "Bare Facts" is a sumptuous exposition.

Coming Events

"Pardon Me," a new musical comedy, will be shown at the Colonial, starting next Monday.

"Ned McCobb's Daughter," a stirring drama of eastern New England, is announced for the Majestic, starting Monday, October 3.

"Crime," an Al Woods thriller, will move into the Wilbur on Monday, October 10.

Boston's Own

Pauline Frederick

Former Dorchester girl plays mother role in domestic film drama, "The Nest," at Loew's Orpheum.

VAUDEVILLE REVUE STARS AT KEITH'S

Four vaudeville headliners with an excellent supporting company in the "Festivities of 1927" provide as sparkling an offering as has been seen at Keith's in many months."

Joseph F. Howard in his song hits, Cecil Cunningham in impersonations, Lester Crawford and Helen Broderick are the particular bright lights in the revue—for that's what the bill really is.

Comedy is entertainingly and enterprisingly provided throughout by Sol Gould, whose work in all his appearances of the "Festivities" is exceptional.

A smart chorus of dancing girls provides the proper surrounding for the number.

The rest of the bill is in keeping with the high general quality of the entertainment, Jack Kraft and Elsie LaMont having a notably fine performance.

'MOCKERY' ONE OF CHANEY'S BEST FILMS

Strange shadows of terror, vivid portrayals of the struggle that rent asunder a great nation, and eerie characters from a world unknown to the rest of the nations of the earth—these are the background for Lon Chaney's strangest role in his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle "Mockery."

Barbara Bedford

The new picture, now playing at Loew's State, shows Chaney in one of his most startling characterizations. He is a Russian peasant, a strange, half-animal of the lower classes, product of generations of serfdom, suddenly thrust into the red struggle of revolution.

Benjamin Christensen, the famous Danish director of "The Devil's Circus" who directed this picture, did so with a clever mingling of the methods of both Europe and America. His subtle use of strange and grotesque shadows to accent direct American methods of screen na[illegible] make the picture doubly interesting.

Barbara Bedford, who closely approaches the star in vivid acting, is seen as the heroine, Tatiana, an aristocrat fleeing from the onrush of [illegible], who comes under the power and protection of the strange central character of the story, and Ricardo Cortez furnishes the romantic figure as her lover, a young Russian officer. Mack Swain, Charles Puffy, Kai Schmidt, Emily Fitzroy, and others of note are seen in splendidly balanced roles.

On the State stage, Dora Ford's Revue and the Catherine Redfield Operatic troupe are the features.

GOOD DRAMA IS PRESENTED AT ST. JAMES

"The Hawk," a drama, adapted from the French of Francis Croisset, and presented first in America by William Faversham, is this week's offering at the St. James.

J. Glynn McFarlane, for whom the play is especially selected, gives a splendid performance as the card sharp who, working with his wife, fleeces wealthy persons by clever gambling.

The eternal triangle, particularly Gallic, occurs when the gambler's spouse becomes infatuated with the son of one of their rich victims.

There follows a dramatic scene in which the gambler discovers his wife's infidelity and disappears.

In the year that follows, a converted gambler and a contrite wife abandon to bitter thoughts a thoroughly disillusioned young man.

Ruth King, the leading lady, gives an excellent performance in the role of the gambler's wife. Others of the cast are Mary Hill, Frank Charlton, Charles Schofield, Day Manson, Flora Maud Gade, John Winthrop and Edith Speare.

ARLINGTON ELKS GO ON OUTING TOMORROW

More than 350 Brother Bills of Arlington Lodge No. 1435, B. P. O. E., will embark in autos tomorrow for their annual outing and field day at Martin Luther Grove, Tyngsboro.

Thomas S. Duggan, chairman of the general committee, has announced complete arrangements for the outing that will take place rain or shine.

The party, in decorated cars, will leave the Elk's Home, Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, at 10 a. m., arriving at the grove well before noon. After luncheon the usual sports featuring a baseball game between the benedicts and single men of the lodge will be staged.

Assisting Duggan on the committee are: Exalted Ruler Richard L. Powers and "The Two Lukes," Luke A. Manning and Luke M. Monroe.

BOSTON RADIO AMERICAN

VOICING THE GREAT DEMOCRACY OF THE AIR

RADIO BOOTH QUESTION BOX

The American Amateur Advertiser radio station at the Radio Show will accept messages for free transmission to all parts of the world, it is announced today by Clifford Harvey, president of the Eastern Massachusetts Amateur Radio Association.

Beginning Monday, September 26, and continuing throughout the week, an active amateur transmitter will be in operation continually at the American-Advertiser booth.

In addition to the free transmission of messages, radio transmission of power will be shown in a new and mysterious manner. Startling effects of ultra short wave broadcasting will be demonstrated.

A question box will be provided whereby any question and query pertaining to radio may be left for answer by mail or personal advice. The American booth will have a number of features every hour while the radio show is in progress.

WBZA IS BACK ON THE AIR AGAIN

At eight o'clock last night WBZA listeners found themselves an audience with nothing to hear. Due to difficulties which had not been located at 10 o'clock this morning, the station was forced to remain silent last night for a period of nearly two hours.

The breakdown came after the Roxy program from New York via Springfield had become started. Governor Smith of New York was scheduled and this brought many thousands of listeners to WBZA's wave.

No announcement or indication of the break came to warn listeners. A silent period occurred until long after the scheduled programs were over. Trouble was laid to the carrier wires between Springfield and Boston.

AIRY RED SOX PAIR ON WAGS PROGRAM

WALTER SHANER and Billy Moore of the Boston Red Sox come to bat at 9:30 o'clock this evening before the microphones of WAGS, "The Voice of the Minute Man," at Lexington. Over Shaner's shoulder he will carry his famous "uke" with which he has entertained the other members of the Red Sox on their long jumps to the various ball parks of the American League. Billy Moore with his many stories of baseball and what not is also expected to score during his inning at Lexington.

HYMAN ALMAN FIGHTS SONS OVER FUND

him tell her husband he went to New York with Mrs. Oxman and one of her daughters registered the couple for him as Mr. and Mrs. Goldberg.

"He said he paid the bills amounting to $300," the witness testified. She added there was nothing said about forming a trust at that time.

On the next visit, however, Alman was excited, his daughter testified. He said, she stated, that Mrs. Oxman had gone to see a lawyer, and he did not know what to do. The witness said her husband sent him to see an attorney named Slater.

Sam E. Wasserman testified that Alman went to his office at No. 27 School street, and told him that he had been to New York with a woman and was registered in a hotel as man and wife. The witness quoted Alman as saying that how the woman was going to bring suit, and had hired a lawyer.

Wasserman said Alman asked what he could do to save his money, and the real estate man suggested a trust. He testified he then sent for his son, Leo, a law school graduate, and Alman asked Leo to draw up some form of a trust and show it to him.

Leo Wasserman took the stand and told of finding Alman with his father, talking of a trust. He said Alman asked him to look into the details and draft a trust as he feared a suit.

PICKS MORROW AS ENVOY

a corporation lawyer and has been a director in many corporations and charitable organizations.

The prospective ambassador, who will retire as a business partner of Morgan to accept the appointment, has long been a personal friend of the President. The choice was made by Coolidge personally and there were indications that in his determination to seek the aid of his friend in the tangled and delicate Mexican problem the President consulted only a few associates.

Upon Morrow will fall the task of piecing over an international relationship worn thin by months of controversy. It is no secret that Coolidge has come to regard the question of Mexico as one of the most troublesome problems of his administration and his friends believe it is his hope to enlist every personal aid at his disposal to put Mexican-American relations on a stable basis before he leaves the White House.

In the opinion of the President, the major difficulty with Mexico hinges on a direct issue whether American property in that country is to be confiscated under the new Mexican land and oil laws. To this question he feels that Morrow is no stranger.

With Congress out of session, Morrow's selection becomes effective at his own pleasure.

Accuses Policeman of Supplying Rum to Be Sold

Lawrence, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—William Leonardis of Haverhill, father of ten children, who was found guilty in Superior Court today of illegally selling liquor, charged that Officer Thomas G. Traynor of the Haverhill police department supplied him with liquor salvaged in raids and also that the officer gave him permission to sell liquor.

He also claimed that there were a number of other places selling liquor under "protection."

Judge George Hayes ordered the statements stricken from the official records and fined the defendant $100.

FATHER FEARS TEACHER DIED IN RIVER

Fearing that his son ended his life by suicide in the Charles River, Willis N. Huntley of Claremont, N. H., who arrived in Waltham today to direct the search for Leigh H. Huntley, missing school teacher, asked the Waltham police to drag the river for his body.

The senior Huntley in company with another son, Harold, and Inspector Peter J. Tracey, looked over the missing man's personal effects at his home. The father said his son had a big sum of money, but none was found in his room.

Neither young Huntley's love affair with Miss Gladys Humphreys, a Claremont school teacher, nor the missing youth's dabbling in the stock market has anything to do with his mysterious disappearance, in the opinion of his father.

"My son owned stocks, but he owned them outright and therefore had nothing to fear if the market broke," said the father. "As a matter of fact the market has not broken, so this cannot account for my boy's absence.

"There was nothing about his friendship for Miss Humphreys to cause him to worry. He suffered from rheumatism in his knee and I think that is the cause."

Huntley's brother, Harold, a student at a Boston school of accounting, expressed the same opinion. He is aiding his father in the search and both are in close touch with the Waltham authorities in seeking clues.

Both frankly declared that the painful knee might have driven the young teacher to suicide, although from Miss Humphreys the authorities learned that, in a recent letter, Huntley had appeared to be very cheerful.

That Huntley may have committed suicide was suggested by a series of messages, written in pencil on a single sheet of ruled paper that were found in the drawer of the dresser in his room. These messages read: "Harold's lamp shade and things are at school, Leigh B. Huntley." "Notify W. N. Huntley, No. 36 Forest street, Claremont, N. H." "Car at Mr. Ferrit's on about Nos. 20-22 Berkshire road." and "One of my tires is over to Mr. Johnson's on Hamblin road."

Dwinnell Confirmed

The Civil Service Commission today confirmed appointment of Clifton H. Dwinnell as library trustee.

2 'WET' PLEAS GO ON BALLOT THIS FALL

Both initiative petitions filed by the Liberal Civic League and the Constitutional Liberty League for repeal of the 18th Amendment to the Constitution, will go on the State ballot as result of a ruling by Judge Sanderson in Supreme Court today.

The justice dismissed a petition brought by William H. Mitchell, Conrad Crooker and other signers of the Liberal Civic League referendum papers, who sought to restrain Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook from issuing signature blanks to the Constitutional Liberty League.

In handing down his decision Judge Sanderson said a case was not made out for interference by the court. The petitions were virtually the same, that of the Liberal Civic League having been filed first. Both call for a vote on the repeal of the prohibition amendment.

RADIO IS BETTER WITH BATTERY POWER

Stick to batteries

You can't beat batteries for radio. Battery power is smooth, silent—ever ready at the turn of the switch. And no battery has proved so economical, so long-lived as the patented big Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery No. 486. This unique battery contains more active materials than any other battery of equal size, because it is built up in layers—the only "B" battery so made.

You'll get more satisfaction from your radio with Layerbilts, your power costs will be less in the long run, and you won't have to buy "B" batteries nearly so often. They are made by the National Carbon Company and backed by its reputation and resources.

JAIL 4 AFTER FINDING DECAPITATED OFFICER

Jasper, Ga., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Four persons were under arrest today and a warrant issued for a fifth in connection with the slaying of W. L. Cape, sixty-two, Pickens County policeman, who was killed after he had sought to search an automobile for whiskey.

Cape's decapitated body was found Sunday on a roadside near Adairsville, about forty miles from the place where it is believed he was killed. Two of the men under arrest accused Lindsey Evans of the murder. His brother, Hoyt Evans, C. L. Smith, Carter Wilson and Carter Jones are in custody.

To Die for Murder of Two

Macon, Ga., Sept. 20 (A.P.).—Wilmer Galloway, negro, was convicted and under sentence today to die in the electric chair at Milledgeville, October 14, for the murder of W. T. Andrews and his wife, who were killed July 24.

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film, a viscous coat that covers them.

That film is an enemy to your teeth—and your gums. You must remove it.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It absorbs discolorations and gives your teeth that cloudy, "off-color" look. Germs by the millions breed in it and lay your teeth open to decay. And they, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea and gum disorders.

Tooth troubles and gum troubles now are largely traced to that film. Old-time methods fail in successfully combating it. That's why, regardless of the care you take now, your teeth remain dull and unattractive.

New methods remove it And Firm the Gums

Now, in a new-type dentifrice called Pepsodent, dental science has provided effective combatants. Their action is to curdle the film and remove it, then to firm the gums.

Now what you see when that film is removed — the whiteness of your teeth—will amaze you.

Ordinary methods fail in these results.

Thus the world has turned, largely on dental advice, to this new method.

FINDS GIRLS IN SCHOOL NEED ADVISORS

Criticism of the morale of Boston high school girls has, in a way, been justified in the opinion of Superintendent of Schools Burke, who today declared that the appointment of eight women advisors to high school girls is the outgrowth of a situation that has existed for some time past.

"The public has justly demanded moral and social education as well as books," he said, "and while many girls do not need a confidante none can be harmed by having one available."

The women chosen for this work are teachers who have made a special study of girls' problems, and who are specially adapted to this sort of work. They had served in this capacity unofficially for some time and have all proven their fitness for it, he said.

"SCANDALS" EXAGGERATED.

"The so-called scandals that have come from girls' high schools have almost without exception been grossly exaggerated," declared Miss Mary R. Stark, advisor for the Girls' Latin High School.

"I find that the modern girl has just as high standards as her mother had and in fact I think that girls are better today than a generation ago. My work is not so much teaching better morals as guiding girls in conduct and social intercourse."

Miss Alice E. Cook at the Girls' High School observed that girls are not so radically different today than a generation ago, but that their problems are different for life is not just as it was in grandmother's day.

She has found, in fifteen years of teaching and as principal of girls' schools, that girls often tell their troubles to a sensible broadminded teacher when they will not confide in their own parents.

OBJECTS TO EXPENSE.

Francis C. Gray, committee member, who opposed the appointment of the eight advisors, said that his objection was not to the work that these splendid women are doing, but to the hiring of so many while the innovation is still in an experimental stage.

He thought that two or three might be appointed and the results watched and if the plan works out successfully then install an advisor in each high school.

"It is outrageous to spend $25,000 for salaries for a project that Superintendent Burke himself admits is experimental," he said. "And it is a question whether any woman, no matter how well equipped, can gain the confidence of the girls who need their help. If these can I am enthusiastically for the appropriation."

PILOT FED LION HIS OWN FOOD AFTER CRASH

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 20.—After man, lion and plane crashed in a canyon, Pilot Martin Jensen divided his sandwiches with Leo.

Not only that, but he stripped a piece of aluminum off his plane bent it into a trough and brought water for Mr. Lion from a spring, according to his story while resting today. Only then did he start to hike his way to civilization, leaving his jungle mate safe, but hungry, in his cage.

Jensen spent today at Apache Lodge, 125 miles north of here, while plans were being made to extract the lion's cage from the wrecked plane.

CRASH IN CANYON.

The flier, who had been missing since late last Friday, appeared at a ranch near Apache Lodge after a three-day hike from the scene of his smashed plane. He left the lion unharmed by the abrupt landing, but somewhat thirsty and with growing hunger.

The lion, a veteran of the circus and long inured to motion picture work, but a novice at flying, appeared highly disgusted with his pilot, according to Jensen's story telephoned here. The lion's steel cage came safely through the crash.

Jensen's flight started from San Diego Friday morning. That afternoon, while flying low up a canyon, he suddenly was confronted by the wall in which it ended. A tree top stopped the plane in time to prevent his striking the wall of the canyon, but it rolled over twice after landing.

BEHAVED LIKE GENTLEMAN.

Jensen added that the lion behaved beautifully all the way, lying quietly in his cage, with the exception of once when he jumped to his feet as the plane ran over a hump in the takeoff at Camp Kearney.

The plane crashed near the mouth of Tonto Creek and stayed there. Jensen continued on his way when the plane lit, until he was dead certain that the cage had held. Then he spoke soothingly to Leo. What Leo roared at Jensen is unprintable for more reasons than the absence of an interpreter.

Airplane search had been conducted for Jensen and his lion passenger since they failed to appear in New York on schedule Saturday.

It is reported from Los Angeles that the studio is sending a truck to Apache Lodge to get the lion.

CARDINAL'S RESIGNATION LAID TO DISCORD NOW

Rome, Sept. 20 (A.P.).—The recent resignation of Cardinal Billot, officially ascribed to advanced age and a desire to prepare himself for death, now is reported to have been due to lack of agreement with the Vatican's policy regarding certain affairs in France.

The principal action with which the Cardinal is reported to have differed was that of placing the French Royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise, on the index expurgatorius, thus notifying all the faithful that it was to be shunned.

HUB GAMBLERS PLAY 2 ENDS ON FIGHT

In the breasts of the Boston gamblers, who have no hearts, Jack Dempsey is enshrined, but when it comes to another part of their person, namely the "right breech," where the bankroll is carried, then Champion Gene Tunney has the call for Thursday's big fight.

The Boston gambling fraternity has made Tunney a 6 to 5 favorite, though quite willing to take Dempsey on the short end of a 10 to 8 sheet.

Though Young's Hotel is gone, "Heel Alley" is still extant, and in a narrow lane beside the old hotel which is the tomb of better days most of the betting in the city is done.

Nearly all the betting has been done by the "percentage boys," who do not actually bet anything on the outcome of the fight, but so manipulate the odds that they have something coming regardless of who wins.

Said "percentage boys" are writing their sheets in two ways today. On one count they are able to make a little profit by playing the fight both ways, giving six to five on Tunney but taking the eight to ten on Dempsey.

Another method is to play the difference between the odds in the "alley" and on State street. On State street the betting is all practically at evens.

Most of the big betters are frankly waiting until the night of the fight. They don't believe any of the stories of the fight's being fixed, of somebody going to have revolvers leveled at him in the ring, or anything of that bunk.

Col. Vincent
Vice-President in charge of Engineering
Packard Motor Car Company
selects Nokol

FOR 25 years Packard has been recognized as one of the leading fine cars of the world. The soundness of Packard engineering practice has been proved not only on the land but on the water and in the air. The Packard Liberty motor is perhaps the greatest single contribution of recent years to America's supremacy in aviation. Packard Marine engines have carried Packard prestige to the four corners of the earth.

No man has contributed more to Packard's engineering success than Colonel J. G. Vincent, Vice-President in charge of Engineering of this great organization. Here is a man who has written his name in indelible letters in the annals of the automotive world.

"Ask the man who owns one"

Years ago, when Colonel Vincent was first considering oil heat for his home in Detroit, he made an elaborate study of all the leading oil burners and naturally he chose Nokol. He was so gratified with results that it was a difficult thing a year ago, when the new Silent Nokol was produced, to get him to consider replacing his old Nokol with the new silent model. He was finally induced to make the change, however, and this letter tells how pleased he has been with his choice.

Colonel Vincent's experience is right in line with that of other leading automotive engineers. Naturally these men, whose lives are given to working out engineering problems, have a keener appreciation for Nokol's efficiency than any other class of men. It is significant that Nokol is preferred by more of the country's leading automotive engineers than all other oil burners combined.

"Only Nokol can build for engineers"

It takes an engineer to appreciate why Nokol leads in efficient operation; why it is quieter, cleaner, more economical than any other oil burner. But it doesn't take an engineer to see the advantage of Nokol's patented combustion chamber, which gives maximum heating efficiency in two minutes' time, compared with the 30 to 45 minutes required by the brick fire box type of burner.

It doesn't take an engineer to see why Nokol, burning a high grade distillate, can furnish heat so much more economically than the ordinary type of burner using cheap, inefficient fuel oils. It doesn't take an engineer to see why Nokol gives virtually perfect combustion—the cleanest, most efficient oil heat known. And it doesn't take an engineer to enjoy this greatest convenience of modern times.

Modernize your home now

Don't go on putting up with the dirt and drudgery of old-fashioned heating methods for another season. Now is the time to modernize your home with Nokol oil heat—before the big fall rush begins. Come in today and see the new Silent Nokol in action; or mail the coupon for instructive booklet on oil heat and details of our attractive budget plan.

Gentlemen:

It is with great pleasure that I advise you in regard to the service which I have received from the Nokol equipment which I installed in my home at 938 Balfour Road, Grosse Pointe Park, four years ago.

This equipment has operated perfectly thru the four years of service and we have never been without heat during this time.

One year ago I installed one of your new silent burners and after carefully trying it out, I wish to advise that I consider it a very fine piece of mechanism. I will always feel perfectly safe in advising my friends to equip their homes with Nokol.

I am

Wishing you continued success,

Yours very truly,

He is survived by his mother, his [illegible] commander of the New Bedford American Legion Post, and two sisters.

MOTHER LOSES RACE TO SAVE SON'S LIFE

White faced and carrying the still form of her six-year-old boy who had fallen from a fourth story window to the sidewalk, a mother ran through the streets of the West End today to the Massachusetts General Hospital in a race with death. Death won.

The woman was Mrs. Maria Constantia of No. 142 Cambridge street. The boy, Metes, had leaned too heavily against the screen apparently and fell the 60 feet to the ground. He was alone at the time in the front room of the apartment.

Mrs. Constantia heard him scream and rushed in. The screenless window and the missing boy told all.

She ran down the four flights of stairs and into the centre of the crowd gathered about the unconscious boy on the sidewalk. Picking him up she ran to the hospital, nearly a quarter of a mile away.

There the doctors made an examination and said the boy was dead, probably having died in her arms. Mrs. Constantia collapsed and was given medical attention.

WATCH OUT OR WE'LL BE LOW DOWN

SKYSCRAPER UP WITH AN AIR-BABY
Artist's conception of how Winthrop O. Sargent, who is inspecting pilots at two Boston airports, does his daily dozen trips into the clouds with novice aviators.

A very casual gentleman, who is always dangerously up in the air, functioned in the Hub today in two places.

He is Winthrop O. Sargent of Washington and next to the job of gelatine testing he has one of the most hazardous in the whole list of employments—riding in tests with novice fliers who think they are good enough to be licensed.

Sargent, inspector of airplane pilots, mechanics and aviation fields for the Department of Commerce [illegible] bureau, has never yet been killed, but he has two strikes on him almost every day of his life as he accompanies the ambitious and often nervous pilots up and down from earth to cloudland and vice versa.

The vice versa is the most delicate.

Inspector Sargent took up applicants for licenses today at the Boston airport and then at Dennison Field, Atlantic. As is his nonchalant custom before hopping off on the test, all he asked was the pilot's name and age.

The inspector afterwards looked over equipment at both fields and said that all was in excellent shape.

He will be up and down and in and around Boston almost a week on this and that, including examination of the papers of pilots already licensed.

CAMBRIDGE OFFICIALS INVOLVED

Acting Chief Hurley's Request for Discharge of Prisoner Is Refused

A broad hint of serious strife in the ranks of the Cambridge police department was given today in East Cambridge district court in connection with the case of Patsy D'Alisaio, which, with all its ramifications, District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell is investigating.

Although charged with a serious automobile law violation, D'Alisaio was championed in court by Police Captain Patrick J. Hurley who sharply cross-examined the motorcycle officer Henry E. Pelletier who had arrested the defendant.

Repeatedly, Captain Hurley asked Pelletier if he had advised D'Alisaio to "See Inspector Coady, he's my boss." Pelletier denied this. It was brought out that in the department organization, Inspector Coady, who is a lieutenant attached to headquarters, has no occasion to be Pelletier's boss.

HARLEY EXPLAINS.

Captain Hurley informed Judge Joseph E. Donovan that he was cross-examining Pelletier at the request of the district attorney and on the same authority he asked the judge to dismiss the charges against D'Alisaio.

He explained that the district attorney was taking care of the case by a thorough investigation. Judge Donovan refused to dismiss the case, saying that on Pelletier's story, the only evidence submitted, D'Alisaio was apparently guilty, but he agreed to a continuance until October 2.

D'Alisaio, who lives in Hunting street, Cambridge, was arrested by Pelletier on Fresh Pond parkway, charged with parking without lights and driving under the influence of liquor. There was a girl in the front seat with him according to the policeman.

Pelletier admitted under questioning by Captain Hurley, that the parkway was policed by special policemen, paid by the city, and that even the surrounding territory was not within his (Pelletier's) district, but he said he had verbal authority from Chief McBride to look anywhere for stolen cars.

IN SEARCH OF CARS.

Q. What were you doing in Fresh Pond Reservation? A.—I was making the rounds on my motorcycle.

Q.—Was the Fresh Pond Reservation in your district? A.—No, but we make the rounds of that district to search for stolen cars.

Q.—Is not the Fresh Pond Reservation policed by special officers employed by the city of Cambridge? A.—Yes.

Q.—Again—is the Fresh Pond Reservation in your district? A.—No. It is in Division 1 and I am in Division 4.

Q.—Did you tell Inspector Coady about this case? A.—No.

Q.—Did you tell this defendant that Inspector Coady was your boss and to see him? A.—I did not.

Q.—When did you bring the complaints? A.—September 8.

Q. Why did you wait so long? A.—It was the first opportunity I had to see the clerk of courts.

Q.—Did you see this defendant at any time from the time you brought him to the station house until the time you made the complaint? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you have any conversation with him? A.—Only what I have related to the court.

GAVE NO "DIRECTIONS."

Q.—Do you know any other motorcycle officers who go into the Fresh Pond Reservation? A.—Yes. White, Quinn and Anderson. White and I frequently start at opposite ends and meet in the centre.

Q.—How many persons in three months have you accosted on Fresh Pond Reservation and questioned? A.—Three or four.

At Captain Hurley's request the testimony was taken down by a stenographer.

In asking that the case be dismissed, Captain Hurley said: "As a police official, acting chief, representing the district attorney and acting in the interests of the public, I ask you to dismiss this case and I take the entire responsibility for it."

"Certain phases of this case have been called to my attention and these are under my personal investigation, and that is all I can say for the present," said District Attorney Bushnell later.

WORKERS' TEAM HIT BY TRUCK; SEVEN HURT

Seven men were injured, five of them requiring hospital treatment, today, when a wagon of the sewer division of the Metropolitan District Commission in which they were riding was struck and overturned by a heavy automobile truck at Central avenue and Willow street, Chelsea.

The driver of the truck, owned by the Johnson Laundry Company of East Boston, who gave his name as James R. Kelley of No. 2 Second street, Chelsea, escaped injury.

The driver of the wagon, John M. O'Connor of Pale street, Everett, escaped with a severe shaking up. Six men with him were all cut and bruised. They were:

HENRY BENNETT, address not obtained by police.

MICHAEL BYRNES, No. 29 Forrest street, Roxbury.

THOMAS ROONEY, No. 7 Shawmut street, Malden.

JOSEPH ROSSI, No. 3 Orgin court, East Boston.

ALBERT A. MAXWELL, No. 14 Crescent avenue, Saugus.

WILLIAM SHEEHAN, No. 30 Wyatt street, Somerville.

O'Connor, Bennett, Byrnes, Rooney and Rossi were taken to the Chelsea Memorial Hospital in passing automobiles. They were found to be suffering from cuts and bruises and may be discharged later today. Maxwell and Sheehan refused hospital attention and went to their homes.

Kelley, driver of the truck, said he did not see the wagon and its load of workers until they reached the corner, at the same time as his machine.

30 AUTOISTS FINED IN ABINGTON; 13 DEFAULT

An impromptu indignation meeting on the steps of the courthouse at Abington followed a court session today at which 30 automobile owners, most of them from Greater Boston, were fined $10 each for "cutting out of line" on the Plymouth highway in Hanover on Sunday.

Thirteen other drivers summoned to court did not appear and were defaulted.

FREED IN 'PETTING ATTACK'

Judge Drops Case Against Man Accused by Roslindale Beauty Winner

Deciding the alleged attack was "one of those frequent petting parties," Judge Fullerton in Dedham District Court today found George Manning of Brookline not guilty of an attempted attack on Miss Ethel Everson of Roslindale, beauty contest prize winner.

"I do not believe any serious attack took place," said the judge in dismissing the complaint which was brought by Miss Everson.

The girl, who was the "Miss Sudbury" of a recent prize contest, told her story in an undertone which could not be heard by those in the courtroom. A Dedham physician testified that he found no marks on her.

Manning, in his own defence, told of driving Miss Everson home from Sudbury, where she was a guest at another beauty contest, but he denied any attack.

A Real Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life After Curtain

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Becky McCloskey, young, good-looking, trying to make her way alone in Boston, finds herself without a position on New Year's Eve. Dan Scarlett, who lives by his wits, sees her huddled in a doorway and persuades her to go to dinner with him. He kisses her. She slaps his face and threatens to brain him with a bottle. Becky sings a little song for him. Scarlett realizes that she has a beautiful voice and makes a bargain to finance her until she gets started if she will let him share her profits. Becky hopes to meet a man she has seen making purchases in the store where she worked. Through Scarlett's influence she joins a chorus. He makes it clear to her that he expects her to find a millionaire admirer and get what she can out of him. Becky refuses. Scarlett induces her to go to a party given by Boris Abelard on the chance that she may meet the rich John Estabrook, her ideal. At the party Becky is thrust into a fountain with her clothes on and faints. Abelard sends his guests away and has Becky taken care of. Months afterwards Becky meets Estabrook in the studio. She tells him she wishes he had never come. Estabrook finds himself interested in her and kisses her. She stands dazed before him and tells him she expected him to be different.

WHO'LL REFEREE? THE BIG QUESTION

Chicago, Sept. 20.—The now famous open letter hurled by Jack Dempsey at Gene Tunney, has made the referee question the most important section of the three million dollar fight, which is beginning to turn this exhuberant village into a madhouse.

Nick Flatley

The third man in the ring Thursday will be just as important as the warriors, in the minds of the thousands who will clutter the scenery around sport's greatest spectacle.

Up and down the boulevards, in the cafes and the speak-easies, in shops and factories and lobbies, the conversation now centers about the referee. The boys have all decided either that Gene Tunney will lick Jack Dempsey and keep the heavy crown perched abaft his bulging brow, or that Dempsey will flatten Tunney, and be the first champion who ever regained the heights, after slipping off the crest.

The boys have bought their tickets, looked at the seat dummies and decided that maybe, with the aid of binoculars, they can see something. They have digested the more or less flat reports from the camps and swallowed their chagrin after discovering that section one was not at the ringside, but thirty-three parasangs back.

But they are steamed up now about the officials. There has been so much talk about crookedness in this fight that the ticket sale is picking up. The boys want to be there to see, if able, what comes off.

M. Dempsey's lengthy epistle to gentleman Gene has convinced the rank and file that perhaps something more than the merits of the respective gladiators enter into these million-dollar scraps. The cynical are inclined to believe that there may be a bit of hypocrisy in the Tunney attitude of detached irritation with the commotion of it all.

The future of boxing, you can hear the whispers, is at stake, said future, according to our observance, has always been at stake, but never so much as in the present instance.

There is talk of a constitutional amendment prohibiting boxing if anything sour develops in this three million dollar battle. There are rumors of gang wars, of machine guns planted at the ringside, and a million other things that make one wish the American Legion had remained home until this particular battle had been fought.

It's all froth, of course, but the promoters and the public go for it, the mob catches the spirit, and the sale of tickets picks up. The bally-hoo has run away from Tex Rickard and the press agents, who fell down in this case, and now it looks as if genuine interest would provide a gate that premeditated publicity could not attract.

DORA DUMB THINKS THAT AN OPEN LETTER IS JUST ANOTHER KNOCK AT THE POSTAL SERVICE.

[illegible] recognized referees in this State will get ringside seats, anyhow. Sixty-seven will sit prettier than the one that grabs the job.

LOOKING FOR TROUBLE THURSDAY

REFEREES have played an important part in many a big bout. Sad decisions have ruined the game now and again, but it always manages to come back, with bigger crowds and bigger purses.

Tex Rickard, aided and abetted by champion Gene Tunney has tried to elevate the sport, but somehow it refuses to be elevated. The rumpus over the Sharkey-Dempsey foul obliterated the uplift achieved by Mister Tunney's pursuit of Shakespeare and the introduction of the 600 Tuxedo-clad millionaires into the best seats at New York fights.

A general impression was spread that that one had been put in the bag, which was more or less fatal to the uplift spirit. Mister Dempsey's hectic note of recent date removed whatever air of sanctity was left above the storm of rumors at the Sesqui Centennial. Everybody's looking for trouble here, so the fight will be calm and peaceful, outside the ring, or history does not repeat.

With approximately a hundred and a half thousand suspicious pairs of eyes looking for a wrong spot, no referee will dare to be anything but on the level. But it's a pipe that the most honest man in the world would be nervous if he had to be the third person in the ring here Thursday night.

A REFEREE IS ONLY AS GOOD AS HIS WORST DECISION.

[illegible] night the families of the 68 referees will be praying [illegible]er, dear father, come home to me now.

DEMPSEY GETS EDGE FROM CROWD

No sensible mortal could believe that strict honesty must prevail where some few millions are concerned. Human nature isn't built that way. Referees can be swayed by sentiment and dollars, just as other individuals can.

Nine hundred and ninety times out of a thousand, the officials are honest, in cases where questions arise. George Siler admitted on his deathbed that his only regret in life was that he had handed Champion Jim Jeffries a decision over Tom Sharkey, when the sailor really won the fight.

Champions have been protected time and again when aspirants actually had them knocked off the throne. The bird with the title generally has the edge that way.

In this fight it's different. Dempsey, colorful and magnetic, will be given every advantage in the almost unanimous opinion of the flock who will kick in for the record purse of American sport. Tunney isn't popular and cannot draw. So the suspicious naturally think that the hero, Dempsey, will hop in there with everything set to help him.

That suspicion has started new interest. Dempsey thinks he's good enough now to flatten Tunney, who beat him a year ago. Tunney, with serene faith in his destiny and his fists, believes he will be a champion for years and years. The whole situation would seem to combine to provide a flaming show a couple of evenings hence.

FOUR HUNDRED TICKET SELLERS WILL BE WATCHED BY AN EQUAL NUMBER OF INSPECTORS THURSDAY NIGHT. IT HAS NOT BEEN ANNOUNCED WHO WILL WATCH THE INSPECTORS.

SHARKEY CAUGHT CROWD'S FANCY

Jack Sharkey of Boston is the biggest individual, apart from the two fighters, who can be discerned in the mad mob that has gathered around Chicago.

The Newton gob is now enjoying one of those strange psychological reactions that hit this ring game every so often. He's actually getting popular. He creates a commotion whenever he goes on the streets.

He almost took the spotlight away from the millionaire warriors when he visited the respective training camps. The crowds flocked around to have a look at the chap who will be the second man in the ring when the next title go is staged.

The Chicago papers are freckled with Sharkey pictures. Jack is quoted by the yard, and not once has he been accused of popping off or bragging. He has steadfastly and sensibly refused to discuss that alleged foul.

Every promoter in the land is chasing Manager J. Buckley, trying to sign Sharkey. Tex Rickard is as friendly as a rich bachelor uncle. Both Tunney and Dempsey greeted Jack as if they were tickled that he was not going to be the opponent in the big dough conflict.

FIGHT GATE WON'T HIT $3,000,000

Chicago, Sept. 20.—With the hour of the Dempsey-Tunney fight approaching, Promoter Tex Rickard was faced with the likelihood that [illegible] gate after all—that the ticket sale, in fact, may not run over $2,500,000.

Many of the 163,000 seats for the spectacle were still unsold this morning and [illegible] unsold [illegible] business. Rickard [illegible] blames the radio.

"Undesirable" $40 seats to the Dempsey-Tunney fight—which apparently meant everything in back of the thirtieth row, ringside—were selling here this afternoon for $30.

Ticket brokers, on the other hand, stated that a brisk demand continues for "good" seats, with ringside positions in the first thirty rows ranging in price from $75 to $250.

Many ticket holders resold their seats after scanning their locations on the official diagram of Soldiers Field. The seats were a considerable distance from the ring.

Radio manufacturers have been advising fight fans to stay at home and get the fight over the radio, and evidently the ads are bringing results.

From all points of the compass, however, came reports to Rickard of preparations by fight fans to converge upon Chicago, coming by specially chartered trains, steamships and airplanes.

Almost every railroad entering Chicago has one or more special trains chartered. The Pennsylvania will run twenty-five specials. The New York Central's "Twentieth Century" will run many extra sections. The Baltimore & Ohio will have four special trains. Specials are now en route from Los Angeles, New Orleans and other far off points.

Hotels were steadily becoming more crowded with visitors today but the hotel managers insisted that everybody would be taken care of, if not in the loop, somewhere within easy distance of Soldiers Field.

Prohibition agents have been assigned to watch all prominent hotels, railroad depots and other possible places where liquor might be taken to visitors.

MRS. HURD OUT OF TITLE GOLF TOURNEY

Garden City, N. Y., Sept. 20 (A.P.)—Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Philadelphia, three times holder of the national women's golfing title, was eliminated from the championship tournament today by Mrs. Henry Pressler of Los Angeles, Western champion. Mrs. Pressler won a close match by a margin of one up.

Among the easy winners was Miss Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., finalist in the recent Western tournament. Miss Wall won by 5 and 3 over Miss Beatrice [illegible] of Wolf Hollow Country Club, Delaware Water Gap, Pa.

Miss Virginia Wilson of Chicago gave Miss Marie Jenney, former Metropolitan champion, a hard battle before succumbing, 1 up.

One of the foreign bids for the title was ended when Miss Eileen Pattison, champion of Bermuda, went down by a 2 and 1 margin before Miss Jane Brooks of Englewood, N. J., in something of an upset.

The distinction of being the first married woman to join the survivors went to Mrs. Alexa Stirling Frazer, thrice champion of America, who now lives in Ottawa, Can. Mrs. Frazer defeated Mrs. Arnold Jackson, Greenwich, Ct., 6—5.

Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, R. I., former champion, was more fortunate, winning from Mrs. J. L. Anderson of the Cherry Valley Club on whose links the tournament is being held, by a margin of one up.

Maloney to Box for Charity Tonight

Jim Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, and Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan, both of Dan Carroll's stable, will appear in an exhibition boxing carnival at Ogdensburgh, New York, tonight. Both boxers will meet boys of that section to help Father Martin get funds for building a church.

Father Martin is a former South Boston lad. He attended Fordham University when he pitched on the baseball nine.

The two star boxers, along with Dan Carroll, Dr. Charles E. Mackey, Mathew McGrath and Charlie Solomon will leave New York immediately after the boxing carnival at Ogdensburgh and journey to Chicago to see the Dempsey-Tunney battle.

Inside Golf

By Chester Horton

Here is how you can learn for yourself the amazing difference between actually seeing the ball when you hit it and hitting it while you merely think you are seeing it. Take a piece of string four or five feet long out to the practice tee and place it on the ground so it makes a white circle about two feet in diameter around the spot from which you are to make some shots. Tee up a ball in the centre of this circle, then let your attention narrow down solely to what's inside that circle while you are hitting the ball. You can draw the circle of string even smaller if you wish. With a little practice this way you soon will adjust yourself so you can, in actual play, readily imagine a circle about your ball and can hold your attention to the given area while actually stroking your ball.

Bitter Row on Over Choice of Referee

State Boxing Commission to discuss the rules and officials for the battle of the century at Soldiers' Field, Thursday evening, were Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's pilot, Tex Ricard, promoter, and the members of the commission.

Both Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, and Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's pilot, have some very set notions about who should be the third man in the ring and the air in the commissioner's office is sure to be charged with some hot words before the decision on this all important point is handed down.

WANT MAN WHO KNOWS.

Herbert C. Lytton, millionaire Chicago merchant, has the pole in the race for appointment, according to those on the inside. He would seem to be an admirable choice on the face of things, but his work in the ring has been confined to amateur bouts and a man needs plenty of experience to work in the world's championship battle.

Walter Eckersall, famous football official, is another always mentioned when the question of the referee comes up. Eckersall, like Lytton, would be a fine selection as far as honesty is concerned, but he, too, lacks experience in bouts of a major character.

Leo Magnolia and Eddie Purdy, two New York referees, are in town and many believe that one or the other will receive the assignment but the commission is not likely to turn the job over to some outsider, despite his reputed ability.

Dave Miller, a local man, who has refereed many big bouts in this State and has always done a good job, is still another that may be chosen.

Before the rival managers are satisfied however, it may be necessary for the commission to name somebody whose name has never been mentioned.

Big betting men from all over the country are here prepared to wager more than $1,000,000 on the outcome of the title scrap. Few wagers have been placed, as most of the wise boys are waiting for eleventh hour information. They are trying to find out the names of the officials before they place their money on the line.

"All Tunney asks for is an even break from the referee," Billy Gibson told me today. "Gene beat Dempsey easily a year ago and can do so again if everything is on the up and up. I don't believe Dempsey is a much better fighter than he was when he last clashed with Tunney."

"I want a refree in there who will insist that Tunney stand up and fight," declared Leo Flynn. "If Tunney is allowed to get on his bicycle and back pedal for ten rounds as he did in Philadelphia it is going to be a rotten fight. Let Tunney stand up and fight as a champion should and Dempsey will knock him out."

The question of what constitutes a foul will also be discussed more at today's meeting. The commission is anxious to prevent a controversy similar to the one that reigned following the Dempsey-Sharkey bout in New York.

The Illinois Boxing Commission, as well as Tex Rickard, are anxious to have the title bout decided in decisive style. They don't want to have the least cloud over the affair as they know that the boxing game cannot stand even a near scandal right now.

Public sentiment in Chicago is for Dempsey. The former champion has more friends here than he has in any city in the country. During the days when Jack was fighting his way to the top, he always made his headquarters here.

This is what leads many to believe that Dempsey is liable to get the breaks from the referee. It is unlikely that there is a referee in the world who would stand up before the great crowd that will witness the bout on Thursday night and rule against Dempsey on anything which is not clear cut.

PROTECT FIGHTERS' MONEY.

The rival heavyweights will take things easy today. The training period is over for the big fellows and they will take things easy until they are called to the centre of the ring on Thursday night.

Tunney and Dempsey will journey into Chicago tomorrow and establish headquarters here.

I understand Rickard will transfer Tunney's $1,000,000 purse to a New York bank tomorrow so as to avoid any possible attachment.

Tex has already arranged to have Dempsey's end of the purse, which amounts to $450,000 deposited in a Los Angeles bank.

Process servers are going to be out of luck if they think they are going to get hold of any of the money which will be coming to either Dempsey or Tunney.

Rickard protected himself on the $40 tickets by selling them to agencies and speculators, with a stipulation that the pasteboards could not be returned.

I have talked with a number of ticket agents who have been trying to unload big blocks of tickets at their face value. It looks as though the $40 sock for ringside tickets was a little big, too much for the boys of the roaring West.

TUNNEY 7-5 FAVORITE.

There are thousands of the cheaper priced tickets going begging. A great many persons apparently figure they can get a better idea of what is happening in the ring by listening in on the radio than they could in one of the cheaper seats which are situated a couple of miles or so away from the ring.

These out-door championship fights have proved unsatisfactory as far as the cash customers are concerned. Unless one happens to have a seat within the first 20 rows he might just as well remain at home.

This is why Rickard did not attempt to go back to Philadelphia this year. He told me the same crowd would never take the bait the second time on account of the poor seating arrangements.

It is Rickard's hope to some day build a suitable stadium in New York, which will give everybody a fairly close-up view of the ring.

Jack's Garters Tell He's Not Himself, Says Estelle

Chicago, Sept. 20 (I.N.S.)—Jack Dempsey's mental attitude was revealed to his wife, Estelle Taylor, on the occasion of his last fight with Gene Tunney by his garters.

"When Jack weighed in for Tunney," said Mrs. Dempsey today, "He wasn't himself. I knew that when I saw the picture of him on the scales. You know he has great personal pride, but lo! and behold, the pictures showed him weighing in with his garters hanging, his shoulders slumped and a doleful expression on his face.

"Those garters—what a story they told to some one who knew Jack."

Tunney rules a 7 to 5 favorite in betting circles with very little real money being put up.

Most of the boys are handing along the tip: "Don't bet." Maybe the developments during the next two days may cause the speculative element to take the rubber off their bank rolls.

stay right here, locked up in the room, until it's all over.

"If Jack wins he'll come to me with a sheepish grin on his face, the same old sheepish smile he wears when he thinks he's done something well. If he loses he'll come back, jaws set, eyes sad, grim, and he won't say a word.

"I'll put my arms around him and say: 'Jack, never mind, I understand!' and I will."

There was a suspicious moisture in her eyes. She [illegible], then spoke [illegible].

"But that big boy's going to win.

"I feel it intuitively this time. I didn't understand anything about boxing when he fought Tunney a year ago and I was green and scared when he fought Sharkey.

"This time, though, I'm on the ground—near Jack, and I [illegible] comfort to him, and [illegible] said to me last night, 'Sweetie, I'm pretty good.' Now, when you get Jack Dempsey to admit he's pretty good that really means he's awfully, awfully good.

"I will be married to Jack three years next February. Never have I seen him in such physical condition. His face seems to [illegible] somehow.

Doesn't "Need the Money"

"His body seems to [illegible] way to express [illegible]. It's peach color and so muscular. I never noticed his shoulders were so big or his waist so thin.

"I've tried to trap him into an admission that would show any doubt in himself. But no—everything he says, and his every action, fairly exudes confidence."

Mrs. Dempsey said that since her husband was beaten by Tunney in Philadelphia a year ago, his only one thought is to win back the title. It wasn't the money that drove him on to training for weeks and weeks—he didn't and doesn't need money.

"Those stories that Jack and I have staged expensive parties in Hollywood are untrue," she asserted. "Jack lives on his income. He never spends a penny of the principal. I make a little money too, and I won't ever touch his principal."

She said that in her conversation with her husband, he has repeatedly stated:

"If I get a fifty-fifty break, Estelle, I'll win. All I want is a square deal."

By that he meant, she explained,

Fears Nothing "Crooked"

the referee, judges and other conditions at ring time must be satisfactory. She doubted, she explained, that any referee could be absolutely neutral, no matter how fine his character. Subconsciously every person leans one way or the other, to Dempsey or Tunney.

"Don't think," she hastened to say, "that I think there will be anything crooked about this fight. I don't. If there is the sporting world won't be able to live it down."

She dismissed with a smile the suggestion that she is Dempsey's manager, remarking: "Just try and boss Jack, try it." She revealed incidentally, that she holds no personal enmity toward Dempsey's former manager, Jack Kearns. All the enmity has been on Kearns' part.

If her husband is beaten, he will hang up the gloves forever and go into business, she said.

"But Jack's going to win—he's got to," she added, with spirit. "I just know he will."

GREATEST STAFF OF WRITERS FOR GREATEST OF RING BATTLES

A RINGSIDE SEAT FOR TWO CENTS—Only a few who pay their money in Chicago will really be able to see the Big Fight, but ALL READERS of the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN will be privileged ringsiders.

Thus, for the amazing sum of 1-20,000th of the price of a ringside seat, you may know every detail, every sidelight of the current Battle of the Century, approximately as soon as those in Soldiers Field.

The BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN will offer the most complete story of the fight by the most competent writers and experts immediately after the affair is finished.

THE BATTLE BLOW BY BLOW—As fast as wires can carry it will appear in the FIGHT EXTRA which will be on the street as soon as the last blow is struck.

SIGNED STORIES by the principals—JACK DEMPSEY AND GENE TUNNEY.

AND THE GREATEST STAFF OF FIGHT WRITERS IN THE WORLD

JACK CONWAY, New England's leading expert, boxing editor of the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN and respected authority on all phases of this intricate game. CONWAY'S stories will give you the real dope from one who knows. No man is in closer touch with Dempsey and Tunney than JACK CONWAY.

NICK FLATLEY, inimitable sporting editor of the AMERICAN, whose sparkling wit and keen analysis of the great spectacle will be worth the price of a ticket to Chi. FLATLEY knows the fight racket as he knows all sporting rackets—from the ground up.

DAMON RUNYON, whose colorful descriptive narratives of world famous sporting events are also world famous.

LEO P. FLYNN, manager of Jack Dempsey, who will present an angle which is of interest to all.

LOUELLA O. PARSONS, Motion Picture Editor of UNIVERSAL SERVICE, who will cover the Battle of the Century from the angle of the very important Fair Sex.

JAMES J. CORBETT, former heavyweight champion.

GENE FOWLER, FRANKLIN GRANT, WARREN BROWN, SAM HALL, HERBERT WESTEN and others.

Why pay from one to ten sawbucks for a ringside seat which may be just north of South Bend, when for two cents you can treat yourself to the real facts of the fight, presented by those who know, by narrative, descriptive and technical experts.

MY Dear Public.

I [illegible] intend to permit either Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney to have anything on me when it comes to dashing off an open letter. So here's the works.

[illegible] Tunney hit me between [illegible] with a [illegible] best-carved English. In fact, it is quite cold. I'm seriously thinking of wiring home and asking the missis to [illegible] benny and a couple of [illegible] so that I won't get frozen while Dempsey and Tunney are [illegible] up their [illegible].

It has been a rather quiet day for me. I was up at [illegible] Dartmouth [illegible] and Jack [illegible] [illegible] Sharkey [illegible] boxing [illegible]

"Cook the can" for dessert!

HAVE you heard about the delicious new dessert that makes itself right in the can? A caramel flavored dainty that women everywhere are welcoming with enthusiasm! Follow these directions:

Caramel Pudding

Place unopened can of Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk in a kettle of boiling water and simmer for two and a half hours, being careful to keep can covered with water. Remove from water and chill on ice overnight. At serving time remove top of can—cutting along the side of the can so that the contents may be removed whole—place on a serving dish, garnish with broken nut meats and whipped cream.

Note: For convenience and to save fuel, caramelize two or three cans at one time and keep in icebox. Besides serving as directed above, use for cake filling, caramel sauce, etc.

Once you get acquainted with Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk, you'll understand why so many women use it in cooking. It is a blend of pure, fresh, full cream country milk and finest sugar. It is super-rich, because most of the water has been removed—super-smooth, because the sugar is so perfectly blended in. Whenever a recipe says "milk and sugar," Standard is the milk to use. Watch this space for many splendid recipes—desserts, hot breads, salad dressings, etc.

And, above all, try Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk in coffee! It creams and sugars at one time! It gives the smooth heavy body, the golden color and mellow flavor that true coffee lovers delight in! Yet it costs but one half as much as sugar and cream used separately! And it keeps well—at ice . . . Get it from your grocer today!

There is an infinitely preferable measure—the carriers of the defective genes should not propagate their kind [illegible] of a [illegible] defective individual—say, [illegible] a useful, a [illegible] long life—does nothing to increase the degeneracies of later generations provided he does not propagate. Such result can be attained with [illegible] deprivation of any pleasure of life except parenthood.

Still the difficulties in applying this method are very great [illegible] because the immense [illegible] of defective germs are resident in normal individuals, and "the recognition of these storehouses is not yet possible." Before that can be done genetics must advance far beyond its present point.

Such Flavor

as this comes only in real Quaker Oats

THE price you pay for substitutes is the same as for the genuine Quaker Oats. The difference is in the flavor. And flavor, above all things, is important in oats.

That rich and toasty Quaker flavor is the result of some 50 years' milling experience. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

That is why millions demand the Quaker brand—why you should accept no other.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates, and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently "balanced" food.

Get Quaker Oats today. Grocers have two kinds: Quick Quaker, which cooks in 2½ to 5 minutes, and Quaker Oats.

A Story of Sylvia Bryant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

Joyce Ackerman, wife of Vance Ackerman, rich broker, appeals to Alexander Ladd, a lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affections. Ladd persuades Mrs. Ackerman to install Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, in her home as social secretary. Stuart Gifford falls in love with her. Sylvia overhears Margot's divorced husband threaten to kill Ackerman. To avert a tragedy Sylvia begs Ackerman to take her to dinner.

Afterward Ackerman is stabbed to death. Ladd tells Sylvia she is in a dangerous position and he will devote himself to the task of getting her out of it. He gives her back her old job in his office with increased pay. Ladd corners Jack Liggett and gives him a chance to escape in return for a confession of guilt. Liggett flees and Sylvia is cleared of suspicion. She leaves Ladd's office, but searches him out when he disappears.

CHAPTER 49.

"When I needed you, you spared nothing to help me," Sylvia said. "And now, there certainly must be something I can do for you."

"Can you give me a different nature?"

The strangeness of the query, the abrupt swerve away from what was obviously material, almost upset Sylvia's confident bearing. But her gaze never left Ladd's face. He sat there, he was like a man of stone.

"Whatever one human being can do for another I am willing to do for you," she said.

In a matter-of-fact voice he replied: "I've never had any great faith in anyone except myself. What I have done, what I am, is purely the result of my actions. I might even yet be the kind of a man you'd approve, the kind the world holds in high regard. I might, if I had a different nature. I doubt if you would be equal to the job of providing it, Sylvia."

"There's nothing the matter with your nature," she told him, patiently. "You have every normal quality a man ought to have."

"I'm afraid you're right," Ladd returned. "That seems to have been my principal trouble. I didn't take easily to the civilized trait. I always found it dificult to be a hypocrite, even though I was a lawyer. Perhaps I'm a primitive born in a wrong generation. At any rate, I'm out of tune with the rest of the world and there doesn't seem to be much to be done about it. You have a young and eager faith; it's very sweet but I'm afraid it's wasted on me."

His security in his convictions was glacial. He was polite, but Sylvia knew that she was not reaching him at all. The only fortunate element in the whole situation was that she had not waited longer to see him. No man, not even Alexander Ladd, could last long in such a suspended state.

Sylvia Felt Herself Driven By a Persistency of Effort

"If I can't do anything for you, perhaps there is someone else—some man friend."

He responded that he had no men friends.

"Nor women friends, either?"

"Joyce Ackerman, perhaps. But Joyce can't handle herself or her own affairs any too well. Does it seem incomprehensible that I have no friends? It isn't to me. I never was able myself to give out much friendshop—I hadn't the knack for it. Besides, I never needed friends. I had plenty of acquaintances." He smiled at her. "Do you realize, young lady, that you're getting me to talk excessively about myself? I actually believe you're rousing the old ego in me."

Sylvia felt herself drvien by a persistency of effort. Ladd's inaccessibility had the effect of hardening her resolve. He was, she was sure, absolutely honest in what he was telling her, but there was a possibility also that he was mistaken.

"Perhaps," she ventured, "this all dates back to some disappointment—some love affair."

"You always were romantic, Sylvia."

"But you have been in love, haven't you?"

A fleeting contraction crossed his face; his eyes now as the room darkened with dusk, were lost in shadows. Sylvia thought his voice was a little changed.

"You are a merciless little thing, aren't you?" he said. "Suppose I had been in love—unsuccessfully? What of it? Isn't love supposed to have an ennobling influence?"

"But you have been in love?"

The silence answered her.

"You're still in love."

He moved a hand in the air; she saw that it was paler than she had ever observed before.

"Don't you think this is all rather silly?"

She Was Alive Now, Alert With the Scent of a Trail

But she was alive now, alert with the scent of a trail. Physically she moved forward in her chair; her hands clasped her rounded knee, which was crossed.

"Tell me—I'm the best friend you have in the world—you've been the best friend I ever had—does it all come down to some woman?"

He was silent for some time and she did not urge him to answer. Then, "If you insist on dragging it out, I suppose you deserve it. I don't blame anyone for my, let us say, misfortune; least of all any woman. But there is a woman . . ."

Sylvia knew that, before she had finished, almost immediately, she would know the woman's name . . .

The room now was deeply shadowed with the closing in of nightfall. The dinner hour had long passed; neither Sylvia nor Alexander Ladd had been aware of it. His features, as she looked at him, decreased in visibility until they were a blur.

Sylvia wondered if he was conscious of her—as a concentrated personality—as she was of him. It was possible, as now she realized, to sense a person by an almost tangible flow of identity.

Ladd resumed: "There is a woman . . . one . . ."

He stopped; what he might have said seemed to recede in his mind, a curtain of reluctance was drawn. Sylvia, all at once, knew that she didn't want to press Alexander Ladd to talk about the woman in his life . . . the one . . .

It wasn't, she admitted secretly, that she felt any particular delicacy in the matter; what weighed was not a consideration for his feelings but a psychic sensation that he might tell her that she herself was the one he meant.

But that was impossible—this she asserted vigorously to herself, even as an intuition crowded her with warning that there was but a thin veil separating her from a disconcerting confession from Ladd. The supposition that he did or had cared for her was incredible, yet it amounted now, essentially, to a realization of a fact. If this happened to be true the realization had come under circumstances that unfitted Sylvia to cope with it. So long as the actual words were unspoken she knew that she could preserve a calm, a balance. If she had to talk about it she could not predict what she might say. What she did understand definitely was that her heart, suddenly, had begun to pump forcefully.

"If any woman has been occupying your mind my advice is for you to stop thinking about her," she said, striving for firmness of tone. "Just empty it all out."

"How simple, how easy, life must look to you," he told her.

"But you can change your thinking," she insisted. "You have will power enough to do anything you want to."

"Perhaps I'm exercising it now," he suggested.

"That isn't like you to be so complacent," Sylvia said, warmly. "I can't think what satisfaction you are trying to get by letting yourself go down hill at this rate. A little longer and you'll be in the mire all the deeper."

Mire, he told her, was where one found it. He hadn't been considering any viewpoint except his own. It was not altogether unpleasant to drift when the end actually did not matter.

"But why?" she demanded. "What's become of the instinct that everyone has to be up and doing?"

"Everyone doesn't have such an instinct—you are not at all accurate."

"At least you did—and not so long ago, either. What's become of it? Did drink kill it?"

"What I am has no relation to drink. I detest drinking. I never did like the stuff. The only reason I used it was because it killed monotony."

She asked him if he would mind telling her what he did with his time, how he occupied the waking hours that could not be avoided. "Rather profitably," he said. "I'm really getting acquainted with some people down here. I've met a longshoreman who has more ideas in one evening than old Seawright ever had in his whole life. And there is a German groceryman who is an authority on cheese and sausage. The ladies in our set, however, are a disappointment. The only one who approaches good looks is miraculously stupid, with the added disadvantage of being married to a burly brute who is a coming pugilist."

Sylvia realized that she was making no progress. He was as stubborn, as immovable, in defeat as he had been when he was on the crest of his wave.

"The trouble with you," she told him in exasperation, "is that things have gone wrong with you and you're sulking. You're quitting."

"And the trouble with you," he informed her, "is that you don't know what you're talking about. Instead of sulking I'm enjoying myself for the first time in years. If I went back—now—you might, reasonably, call that quitting. There's no satisfying you. You never really approved of me when I was a success and now that I'm a perfect failure you aren't satisfied either."

"You can say smart things, but that doesn't make them true."

"You're right," he agreed, surprisingly. "I've been making the best case I could for myself. You can't blame me for that, can you?"

Yet Cupid Manages to Trail Along

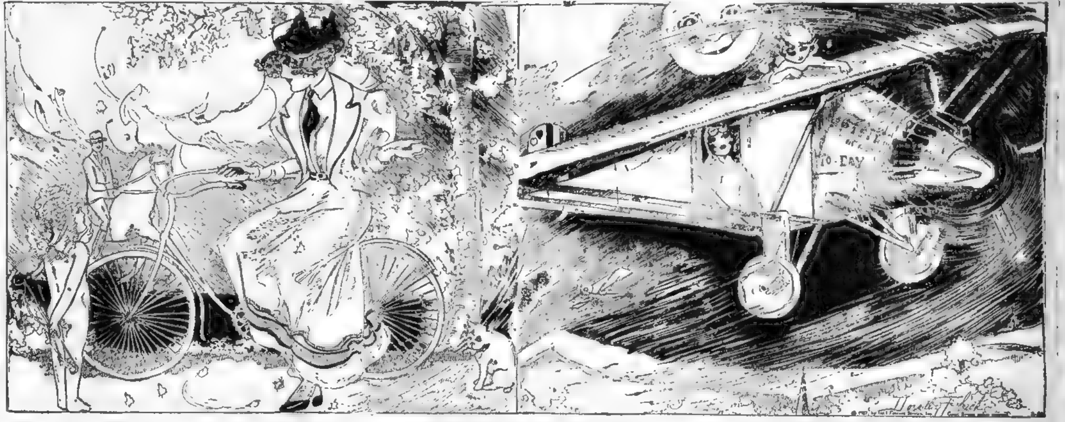
DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack



DON'T you love to listen to Mother's accounts of the thrilling bicycle rides she and Dad took when they were sweethearts? And how Her Mother thought it was terrible for a girl to ride on one of those contraptions! And how everybody prophesied that sooner or later she would be killed and everything if she persisted in riding all over the country on one of those terrible bicycles?

Those were the good old days, and Mother laughs a bit over flying in the face of Providence and taking her life in her hands every time she mounted her two-wheeled steed and blithely rode into the unknown. But she wasn't terribly afraid for she knew Cupid had found a way to hang on and everything was safe, for Dad was with her and Cupid was guiding them, so why worry?

But now! When Daughter goes on a "joy ride," the plane carries her far above the clouds and rushes madly through space, while poor Dan Cupid clings perilously to the silvery outstretched wings. And Daughter, too, knows that he's there and that everything will be all right for her to command, not to apologize. But he was painfully inarticulate. Always, even as a child, he had been slow, taciturn, inexpressive. The habit of years was uppermost, and his tone expressed more of scorn than contrition. "It was beastly to play on your social inferiority," he said. "Like fighting a man without a weapon. I'm sorry I did it. I'm even—sorry for you."

"Don't feel sorry for me!"

Becky clasped small hands at the nape of her neck, smiling her gamin smile although her eyes still smouldered with anger and with pain.

"Cuss all you like. I don't mind that. But save the glycerine tears for someone who needs them. I'll tell the world and you, too, that I'd rather be a chorus girl that knows she's alive than a swell guy from Brookline that's dead from the neck up—and down. So cut the comedy, Ambrose. I know how your dear little aristocratic mind works. I see 'em by the quart."

"You must," snapped Estabrook, seeing that this was the only gratitude his difficult apologies won. "Try to grasp this," he went on more steadily. "I thought you expected me to make love. Others like you have always. The way you acted when I first came in."

Becky colored. "I was surprised to see you, that's all," she said in a low voice.

"How could you be? You didn't know who I was."

"Oh is zat so?" Becky's lips curled bitterly.

"Well—you did?"

"Yeh, I did, Ambrose. And not only that, but Borisd told me you didn't attend his li'l receptions."

"That doesn't explain your knowing me by sight," Estabrook returned, looking sharply at the girl.

"Well put two and two together, nitwit. I'd seen you before."

"Where, pray?"

Becky wished immediately that she had not spoken.

But she answered truthfully, lifting her chin in defiance. "I saw you in a store . . . with your mother."

There was a fine edge of sarcasm to Estabrook's words. "So you and my mother use the same shops?" He added quickly: "But my mother, it happens, is abroad for the Winter. She can't bear cold weather."

"It was last year," said Becky, coloring to her eyes. And at the doubtful look in Estabrook's face she added passionately, "And I wasn't shopping there either. I was working, selling ribbons by the yard, that's what." Then, terribly embarrassed by the implications of her confession: "Listen here Ambrose," she said, "And I'll tell you a little fable that hasn't been set down yet by George Ade or any of the other guys. There's no moral to it, but it's a true story, see?"

"By all means go on."

"Rest your oars, brother, I will. I may be a sap, but I'm not such a sap as some people—you for instance—think. You suppose I'm a wild baby, don't you? Smokes, drinks, swears, an' rolls her own stocking. Well, her own is right. Lemme tell you, there's one thing I don't do and one kind of a fool I'm not. If you don't believe it, take a look at my make up and then look at the flashy dames that dance in my row. But get this—you needn't pity me because I'm not draped in diamonds. When the right guy comes along I'll knock 'em all silly. And meanwhile, Ambrose, I'm fully and completely willing to sit pretty. See?"

"I see," replied Estabrook, "That you put a price on your wares, and that like all good tradesmen you raise it by making the supply smaller than the demand. As one . . . who was once a prospective buyer . . . may I ask that price?"

"Love, first of all," said Becky. "And—gosh—you needn't look so surprised. Even chorus girls can love, Ambrose. That's one of the few things in this little world that isn't reserved for your precious high hatters." There was a pause, and Becky, in a changed voice, a voice as gentle and caressing as a Summer wind, inquired: "Why are you so bitter, Ambrose? Did some dame double cross you once?"

"No woman's had the chance, so far, Becky."

"Then why this ritzy attitude? I haven't hurt you. I'm not trying to put anything over on you."

Estabrook laughed with a sudden sense of liberation.

"I'm not used to being called to order, my dear. I'm used to getting what I want. And I did want you, just then. I'm afraid I haven't had much practice in keeping my temper."

"I'll say you haven't. And I'll say so, furthermore, that you got a direct way of going after what you want. But gee, Ambrose, what gets me is why you're so cussed suspicious. We aren't all gold diggers, you know. And honestly, Ambrose, I liked you an awful lot when you came in. Even though you did look at me as if I were a volcano about to erupt. And I wanted you to like me, too, see?"

"But I—"

"Not that way, Ambrose. Any girl gets enough and too much of that sort of liking. I mean like, like the way real pals do. The way you'd like what . . . what you'd call a real nice girl."

"But I do like you." Estabrook spoke almost savagely. "I wouldn't be here if I didn't. And I want to think you're nice. But—that makeup would frighten less prejudiced men than I am. And I am prejudiced, I admit it. Now that dress—"

"There isn't much of it, is there?" Again that soft flood of color suffused Becky's skin, and she shook her head quickly, as if to drive back self-consciousness. "I'll give you the low down, Ambrose," she continued. "Only you mustn't tell or I'll get the hoarse ha-ha. This charming little frock was a sh[illegible] [illegible] and skirts last year were pret[illegible] so it wouldn't go up any [illegible] or come down any lower. But girls gotta have a new even[illegible] dress. Say—d'you think I like this rhinestone harness that scrapes the skin off my shoulders so I can't sleep when I get home?" Becky hesitated, panting, then added fiercely: "Only I wish to heaven you'd cut out razzing what I got until you're ready to offer an improvement on it."

Tomorrow—Deeper grows the love stream in Becky's heart.

WOMEN CAN NOW DO MORE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Keeps Them Well

Fifty years ago there were few occupations for women. Some taught school, some did housework, some found work to do at home and a few took up nursing. Today there are very few occupations not open to women. Today they work in great factories with hundreds of other women and girls. There are also women architects, lawyers, dentists, executives, and legislators. But all too often a woman wins her economic independence at the cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberlain who works in the Unionall factory making overalls writes that she got "wonderful results" from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mrs. Chamberlain lives at 500 Monmouth St., Trenton, N. J. She recommends the Vegetable Compound to her friends in the factory and will gladly answer any letters she gets from women asking about it.

AUTHOR SKILLFULLY STRUMS HEARSTRINGS

At the end of the trail.

Hearing the tap at the window, Maurine turned, and there beheld Vivian Dangerfield, smiling with those wondrous eyes of old.

Let Maurine tell it—

"To hide my tears, I ran and brought his child,
But she was shy, and clung to me, when told
This was papa, for whom her prayers were said.
She dropped her eyes and shook her little head,
And could not, by his coaxing, be beguiled.
Aunt Ruth was not at home,
And we two sat and talked as strangers might,
But once I thought I saw his large eyes light
With sudden passion, when there came a pause
In our chit-chat, and then . . . . .
I pressed a kiss upon his fair child's brow."

Well . . . you can imagine the effect this well-timed piece of business had on Vivian Dangerfield. He was always . . . what shall we say? . . . near the boiling point. The old light leaped into his eyes and he pawed the carpet with one foot, while beads of perspiration bejeweled his brow as he breathed rapidly.

Let us leave the two old lovers until Monday morning and see what happens

The power of great personality has been manifest in an unexplainable way to Belle Bennett.

"When I was selected to play opposite Emil Jannings I was worried, hesitant, fearful. Jannings spoke no English; I no German," she explained.

"This feeling came to a climax when we stepped before the camera for our first important scene together. Words that were strange to me flashed through my brain and as I spoke them Jannings smiled.

"I had spoken my cue lines in German."

Final Bid..1 N.T..... Played by [illegible]

Salient Points of the Bidding

With all four suits protected, South bids No Trump in preference to Clubs. Had his holding in Clubs been in a Major suit instead, the Major suit would have been the preferable bid. But to bid a Minor with such strong holding would risk the danger of having the bid left in, with small chance for game.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 1. Applying the Rule of Eleven, East can have but one Diamond higher than the 7 led. Declarer gambles on its not being the King and plays the Queen from Dummy. With the King in East's hand this play would cost the Declarer a Spade trick. Declarer takes the chance because of the necessity of attempting to establish his Club suit by a finesse before the adverse Diamonds are established. The only entry in Dummy that can be used for this purpose is the Queen of Diamonds. By playing the 9 of Diamonds from Dummy on the first round, East's higher Diamond could be forced, and South, taking the trick with the Ace, could establish the Queen as a later entry in Dummy; but should he play in this manner and the Club finesse then fail, West's remaining Diamonds would be good. Holding five originally West could take three Diamond tricks and these, with the King of Clubs and Ace of Spades, would stop game.

Trick 3. Declarer holds off to make sure East's Diamonds are exhausted.

Tricks 6 to 8. West refrains from discarding his established though worthless Diamonds to give Declarer the impression that he has a re-entry.

Trick 10. East realizes that if he passes this trick Declarer will need but one more trick for game. Unless West holds the Ace of Hearts, game is lost. East, therefore, takes the trick with the Ace of Spades in order to lead a Heart.

Trick 11. South's finesse is compulsory. Game is possible only if East holds the King of Hearts.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOME Englishman is always attempting to be amusing, by denouncing the American husband as a "boob."

But it is as a husband that the American man not only "measures up," but shines. He positively scintillates!

• • •

He is a BORN husband! No matter how he may struggle against it, it is his destiny to devote his life to some WOMAN!

Superficially he may be a wild, young "single-footer," who could never be broken to harness or halter; but, potentially, he is a kind, docile Dobbin doomed to be driven with a ball of yarn or a bit of baby-ribbon, by any woman who happens to annex him.

• • •

In other countries, husbands have to be "made" out of raw—very raw—material. It is the wife who does the catering and the coddling; who irons out the bachelor-wrinkles, puts patches on her husband's morals and manners, and trims the raw edges off his disposition.

Over here, husbands come ready-made, fresh from the hands of a spoiled mother and the example of an adoring woman-ridden father.

Nothing to do, but put on the passementerie!

This is perhaps the only country in the world where you can spot a married man at sight. He doesn't have to wear a wedding-ring. His expression, his conversation, his attitude, his clothes, his habits—ALL tell the story.

Where else will you find a husband who will creep out of bed in the morning, take the ice off the dumbwaiter, tiptoe softly into the kitchen, make the coffee and come in bearing his wife's morning cup, her mail, and her cigarettes—simply because it "gives her a headache" to get up early?

Where else will you find one who will work like a stoker downtown all day, in order to pay for tickets to a grand opera, which he detests, and to which his wife mercilessly drags him in the evening?

Where else will you find a husband who is perfectly satisfied with the room on the air-shaft, three hooks in the clothes closet, one drawer in the chiffonier, and the end of the top shelf in the bathroom—with ANYTHING, in fact, that "Mother and the girls" will spare him?

• • •

But that is not being a "boob," it is being a super-husband. It takes chivalry, unselfishness, generosity, tenderness, manliness and magnificent self-control.

• • •

The Great American Husband is NOT a mollycoddle—he is a HERO!

FAMOUS COMPOSERS

By COZETTE DOUGLASS.

BEGINNING his musical career as a concert pianist, winning fame as an organist, and finally achieving the crown of operatic composition—this is the life of Charles Camille St. Saens, born in Paris October 3, 1835.

St. Saens entered the Paris Conservatoire when a boy, to study the organ. For a short time he studied composition under the famous Halevy, and, strange as it may seem, tried twice for the Grand Prix de Rome, the coveted scholarship of the Conservatoire. However, he failed to win the prize and obtained the post of organist at the Church of St. Mery. In 1861 he went to the famous Madelaine as organist, where he remained until 1877.

In this year, through the efforts of Franz Liszt, St. Saens' famous opera, "Samson and Delilah," was produced at Weimar, although it was not until 1890 that it was heard on French soil.

While St. Saens' music shows evidence of the influence of the great masters, he invariably gives his compositions something which is absolutely his own individuality.

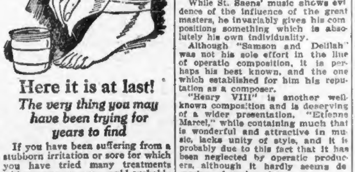
Although "Samson and Delilah" was not his sole effort in the line of operatic composition, it is perhaps his best known, and the one which established for him his reputation as a composer.

"Henry VIII" is another well-known composition and is deserving of a wider presentation. "Etienne Marcel," while containing much that is wonderful and attractive in music, lacks unity of style, and it is probably due to this fact that it has been neglected by operatic producers, although it hardly seems deserving of such a fate.

There is a long list of compositions for piano, organ, violin and string quartets to his credit. Perhaps the best known of his popular compositions is the "Danse Macabre." His reputation rests largely on his mastery of orchestration, and there is hardly a concert given which does not contain his name on the program.

St. Saens is regarded as the first musician of France, and was widely loved, not alone for his music, but for his lovable personality.

He died in Algiers on December 16 1921, leaving the world richer than ever through its heritage of his music.



Here it is at last!

Say Something Good

By LUCY LOWELL.

AFTER all, isn't it just as easy to say something good? When the name of this one or that comes up for discusion and perhaps for criticism, won't you be a wee bit happier if you say: "Perhaps that isn't true; I don't believe that of him."

There always is some good thing to be said. Only a tiny thing, perhaps, yet how important it may be in the face of all the disagreeableness which may be dug up against nearly everybody.

Read the gentle words of James Whitcomb Riley on "Let Something Good Be Said":

"When over the fair name of friend or foe
The shadow of disgrace shall fall, instead
Of words of blame and proof of thus and so,
Let something good be said.

"Forget not that no fellow-being yet
May fall so low but love may lift his head:
Even the cheek of shame with tears is wet,
If something good be said."

Just a word spoken out of sincerity and kindliness is a tremendous force for helpfulness.

Few say the critical, condemnatory thing deliberately. They speak the bad word without taking thought, idly sometimes, seldom in deed with the intent to injure.

And this means that the tongue must be watched. "The tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity, so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body and setteth on fire the course of nature, and it is set on fire of hell."

Thus wrote St. James in his magnificent dissertion which begins: "For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man and able also to bridle the whole body."

Watch the word. Let it be good.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

A WELL-KNOWN social worker claims that men are getting worse all the time, and any woman who trusts a man nowadays is either inexperienced or doesn't give a darn.

---

SHE says that if a girl does find a fellow she can trust he's usually so dumb she doesn't want him.

---

HE'D probably be the kind of a man who'd ask for his kisses on the honeymoon.

---

THERE are still a few men left who think a girl means it when she says "No."

---

BUT most of them are so rough they must have learned their petting from a chiropractor.

---

THEY want to hug you before they get your telephone number.

---

AN IOWA girl says she met a fellow the other evening who was such a low brow that it would take him three years to have his face lifted.

---

HE could use his eyelashes for a beard.

---

HE used to be a gentleman, but he lost his title.

---

THE telephone directory is his book of etiquette.

---

IF he had any women, he'd have women on the brain, if he had any brains.

---

HE thinks he's a college boy just because he sent a coupon to Scranton.

---

HE never carries any liquor with him. He's what you'd call rough-dry.

---

HE imagines he's handsome, but somebody else must have been looking in the mirror at the time.

---

HE has the kind of a face that when he walks down the street all the jewelers take their clocks out of the windows.

---

HE says he'd like to be a lady-killer but it's hard to find any ladies.

---

HE'S the type of man who'd wear a celluloid collar while he was making love to a red hot mama.

---

HE was betrothed to a girl once but she broke the engagement as soon as she was discharged from the insan[illegible]lum.

---

NO woman likes a mollycoddle, but a girl doesn't want a fellow who's so rough that every time he hugs her he throws her hips out of joint.

ANTACID CORRECTIVE LAXATIVE
THE CHAS H PHILLIPS CHEMICAL CO.

Acid Stomach

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

400,000 Orders for Fords; Car Not Ready; 65,000 Men

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—"They tell me," said Henry Ford in the most matter of fact manner, "that orders have been received for 400,000 of the new cars."

Did any other concern in the history of the world ever book $200,000,000 worth of orders for a product not even begun to be made or even priced? Yet Mr. Ford didn't appear to think that this was anything at all extraordinary.

Mr. Ford was much more animated when he made this statement: "We are already employing, though we are not yet under production with the new car, 65,000 men—and the 65,000 are drawing as much pay as the 90,000 used to get.

"You see," he added, "we have employed a lot of very highly skilled men in connection with getting our machinery and tools and other things ready for the new job."

If Ford is already employing in his Detroit plants 65,000 men, how many will he employ when output of the new car gets fully under way?

General Manager Sorensen, while conducting me over the River Rouge plant—now named the Fordson plant—repeatedly drew attention to very important additions to facilities. The company's steel-making and steel-rolling facilities have been greatly expanded, in preparation for the big demand expected for the new Ford.

"We made as many as 8,500 a day of the model T," Mr. Ford replied to a question. "We should be able to do better than 10,000 a day once we get everything going smoothly. Of course, it will take longer to build the new car, as it is better and bigger in every way, but the stopping of production has given us a chance to put men to work on increasing our facilities."

When we passed "the fifteenth millionth Ford," now housed among other notable Ford landmarks, I asked: "How many years do you figure it will take you to reach your fifteenth millionth new car?"

It was obvious that Mr. Ford has not made any calculation. After a little hesitation, he remarked:

"Oh, it shouldn't take us very long—only a few years. Our facilities are very different now from when we started making model T, nineteen years ago."

There is one subject on which definite information is not available, namely, the date when number one of the new car will run off the end of the famous moving platform.

When Mr. Sorenson pointed out where the new Fords would make their exit from the plant, I sounded him as to when this event might be expected. He jocularly replied, "The answer is yes." Then he added that he couldn't tell for the very good reason that nobody could tell exactly.

Seeing that final experimentation has not yet been complete, and considering the colossal magnitude of the task of making over practically everything, it will amaze me if the whole machinery can be made ready to function for weeks. However, Mr. Ford has already done things which others were sure were utterly impossible.

Mr. Ford emphasizes that it is not merely a case of getting out finished cars, but that the whole country must be supplied with parts, "so that everybody will be able to get the kind of service we have always believed, from the very start, buyers of our cars should get."

Of course, many of the most important parts have been in production for some time. The rapidity with which molten steel is transformed into ingots, from ingots into bars of various length and thickness, and then into finished parts is bewildering.

Mr. Ford's ardent championship of peace was revealed by this remark:

"The automobile has done more than anything else in the world to enable people to get acquainted and become friends. People in all parts of the country know each other much better than before they could travel around.

"Now the airship is going to make it easy for the people in different countries to get to know one another better. Just think what Lindbergh alone has done in this way.

"It won't be so very long until we have airships capable of making 400 miles an hour carrying 200 passengers. Crossing to Europe," he added with a smile, "will be a case of merely taking tea on the way."

STATE OF TENNESSEE

Tennessee Rural Public School Building and Repair Bonds

Sealed bids on forms prescribed by the State Funding Board of the State of Tennessee will be received by said Board at its office in the City of Nashville, Tennessee, on the 1st day of October, 1927, at 11 A. M. for $1,000,000 Tennessee Rural Public School Building and Repair Bonds of the State of Tennessee. Said bonds will constitute the general obligations of the State of Tennessee, and will be dated July 1, 1927, payable July 1, 1947, bearing interest payable January 1 and July 1. The bonds will be coupon bonds, registerable as to principal or as to both principal and interest, and both principal and interest will be payable in lawful money of the United States at the Fiscal Agency of the State of Tennessee in the City of New York, N. Y., or at the office of the State Treasurer, Nashville, Tennessee, at the option of the holder.

Said bonds will bear interest at a rate not exceeding five per centum per annum, and will be sold to the bidder offering to accept said bonds at the lowest rate of interest in multiples of one-quarter of one per cent and in the event of two or more bidders bid for bonds bearing the same rate of interest, then to the bidder offering to pay the highest premium. No bid of less than par and accrued interest will be considered.

All bids must be enclosed in a plain sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Tennessee Rural Public School Building and Repair Bonds" and must be accompanied by a certified check for two per cent of the amount of bonds bid for, drawn upon a bank or trust company payable to the order of the undersigned, to secure the faithful performance of the terms of the bid. All bids must be unconditional.

The opinion of Messrs. Thomson, Wood & Hoffman, of New York City, approving the validity of said bonds will be furnished to the successful bidder free of charge. The right is reserved to reject any and all bids. Said bonds will be ready for delivery on or about October 15th, 1927, and payment may be made therefor in Nashville, New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore, or Chicago, at the purchaser's option.

By order of the Funding Board of the State of Tennessee.

Dated September 15th, 192 7.

F. S. HALL,

Commissioner of Finance and Taxation

Dated September 15th, 1927.

Isadora Duncan Had World at Her Feet

stitution, and contrast them with the ideas which prevail today. The modern freedom of every one of these departments of human enterprise can be clearly traced to an influence which she exerted, often by main force, upon an unwilling and sullenly mistrustful society.

ISADORA'S CHUMS

Consider for a moment, if you will, that prior to gay days, it had been distinctly bad form for the young women of respectable families to be seen at a theatrical performance where even classical ballet was performed. Theatrical tights were a horror and an abomination, whose sight was to be strictly avoided by women of virtue.

Late Victorian authors had a sure formula to describe a respectable woman whose chastity was assailable, in depicting her as attending an opera performance at which the ballet was performing. Even so, the woman was sure to remain hidden in a dark recess of a box, and to leave the theatre heavily muffled in cloaks and veil, no matter what might happen to her moral status a few pages further on.

During her show-girl days, Isadora met not a few personages who were to flit across her path at odd intervals throughout her subsequent career.

Maybelle Gilman, one of the most famous show girls in the history of the stage, was one of her companions in those days. Ruth Saint Denis was another. Isadora's contrasting attitude towards the two women was typical.

Maybelle married William E. Corey, the steel magnate, and aspired to be a great lady in France. Isadora always preserved for her a sort of scornful friendship. Maybelle took very seriously her own grandeur, and loved, in later days, to inveigle Isadora to her French chateau so as to impress the dancer with her wealth and power.

AT HER FEET

During one of the periods of financial depression Isadora frequently encountered, Maybelle invited Isadora's girl pupils to spend a couple of weeks' holiday at her place. Much to the amazement and fury of the girls, Maybelle put them up in her stables. It was not so very long after that occurrence that Isadora sent Maybelle one of her rare invitations to her own chateau, and there she had her revenge.

All the wealth and society and statesmanship of Paris were at Isadora's feet. Men and women whose names stood for the most brilliant and dazzling accomplishment in the arts of the stage or the brush, in the craft of politics and authorship, the most dazzling cocottes and the most powerful magnates were there displayed before Maybelle as Isadora's devoted slaves.

The revenge was cruel, for try as she might, and spend what she would, Maybelle had never been able to make the slightest dent upon the wall of exclusiveness which every one of these societies, whether respectable or beyond the pale, maintains against those whom they regard as uninteresting climbers and pushers. Isadora's skill in drawing to herself the fine metal from all these seething crucibles, and mingling them together against the laws of convention and nature, was always astounding, and its effect upon Mrs. Corey was crushing.

When the two women kissed their ecstatic farewell, onlookers wondered whether a sizeable bite of the dancer's face would not take its departure in the teeth of the visitor.

With Ruth Saint Denis, Isadora never became very cordial. The reason, perhaps, was to be found in Ruth's frank admiration for Isadora's art and her sincere attempt to copy it. Isadora detested her imitators, and said the bitterest things about them. She would never admit that they caught anything of her idea or inspiration. Always, on the other hand, Ruth Saint Denis admired Isadora and watched her work with sincere and understanding devotion.

TAUGHT DANCING

To a degree, the same condition prevailed with another contemporary, Gertrude Hoffman. This dancer was frankly of the vaudeville stage. She appropriated ideas and postures where she saw them, first from Isadora, and later from Isadora's most formidable imitator, Maud Allan.

Like Ruth Saint Denis, Gertrude Hoffman always grew enthusiastic at any mention of Isadora's dancing. On every possible occasion she bought tickets to her performances and more than once roundly berated frivolous, giggling neighbors in the audience for their lack of respect for a great artist and a beautiful undertaking.

It was inevitable that Isadora's sensibilities and driving enthusiasms should have made her chafe at the conditions surrounding her in the Augustin Daly company, and she finally abandoned the theatre for a short career as a teacher of the dance. She gathered together a class of children and commenced a series of courses of instruction at the Windsor Hotel in New York City.

Through all her life some inner urge continually turned Isadora's mind and hopes toward little children. In them she saw the future accomplishment of the things which she knew she would never realize in her own lifetime. She knew that her ideals were unattainable, depending as they must, upon the co-operation and understanding of poets, sculptors, dramatists, painters and actors who would view her great vision eye to eye with her.

IN DRAWING ROOMS

Most of the children whom she taught at the Windsor Hotel were from the millionaire families along Fifth avenue. Later she was to realize the futility of trying to accomplish a revolution in her art with the aid of paying pupils. In after years she refused all compensation, taking scores of girls under her wing, supporting them at her own expense, and hoping to find at least one whose inspiration would measure up to her exacting demands.

[illegible]

ing came to interest some of the dowagers of New York and Newport society, and it became quite the thing for those mighty millionairesses to condescend to invite the young dancer to give a performance of her new, and somewhat startling dance program in the drawing rooms in New York or on their lawns at Newport.

THE FINAL BLOW

Of compensation to the dancer there was seldom any thought, and though there was an income from the pupils, it was niggardly, and many a night Isadora danced away the pangs of gnawing hunger in the odor of thousands of dollars' worth of rich viands awaiting the respectable guests of the evening.

The final blow came when one of the leaders of New York society, moved by the young girl's beauty and grace, called her aside at the end of her performance and gushingly asked her if she could not offer her a dish of strawberries.

The strawberries were red. Isadora saw red for perhaps the first time in her difficult but inspired career, and when final, utter, crashing tragedy came upon her fifteen years later, that red flamed into a passion which had the consuming fury of all the devils of the lowest pit of Hell.

Tomorrow Fred Toye will tell the story of Isadora Duncan's first act of startling heroism in which she saved the lives of a score of little tots, to the imminent risk of her own.

Here's all you have to do:

If, through reading an Evening American or Sunday Advertiser Classified Ad. you have found a better position which has given you a new interest in life—found new happiness and independence by buying a home—secured a pet which has saved someone's life—recovered or restored to others precious lost articles—or perhaps found a business opportunity that changed your whole course in life—write about it.

Don't make the mistake of writing about the other features of the newspaper which you enjoy—your letter must be confined to some personal experience connected with the reading of an Evening American or Sunday Advertiser Classified Ad.

Don't worry about your composition. Just give facts, names and dates. Letters will be judged on the basis of originality, news value and the importance a Classified Ad. played in your life.

Even a post card may be large enough for your purpose. Mail your story to

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defence.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

The Value of Books

President's Address on a Great Source of Education Should Be an Encouragement to Millions

President Coolidge expressed some homely truths about education in his recent address at the dedication of the Lincoln Memorial Library at the South Dakota State College. They are worth keeping in mind.

First of all, he emphasized the important part that the library plays in education. He said:

> "While the teacher is the instrumentality and the directing force, to a very large extent, for the training of youth and the diffusion of knowledge, books are, after all, the repository of learning.
> "A liberal education may begin in the classroom, but we will scarcely rise above mediocrity unless it is extended into the library, and by that means broadened into the practical experience of life."

The business of the teacher is not just to impart information to the pupil. The amount of information that can thus be transmitted from teacher to scholar is small. The main business of the teacher is to inspire the student so that he or she will go to the books where, in great detail, is the information which the teacher can give only in sketchy form.

A boy or girl who has learned to read and to love reading is on the way to an education. The college graduate who has not learned to love reading is only partly educated.

If the most brilliant faculty members of all the universities in the world could be collected together in one institution of learning, they would be insignificant compared with the faculty of scholars ready to teach any of us in the books in our public libraries. And the great scientists, historians and authors of today have written what they have to say in books, of which their lectures are nothing but brief abstracts.

The library is the keystone of education. That was one point the President made. His other was that character is even more important than knowledge, and schools and colleges which do not teach character deny the child the better part of his preparation for life. The President said:

> "Unless our scholarship, however brilliant, is to be barren and sterile, leading toward pessimism, more emphasis must be given to the development of our moral power. Our colleges must teach not only science but character."

By character we mean the ability to control the baser passions, appetites and selfish motives, and subordinate them to our higher ideals.

The President's message that the great source of education is the library should be an encouragement to the millions whose opportunities for schooling have been limited. His little sermon on character as the greatest thing in life should be a warning to the thousands of educational institutions now opening, a warning not to lay all their emphasis on the development of mental power.

Interests American Boys

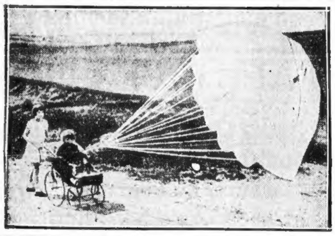
Useful Because It Arouses Thought



A BABY CARRIAGE PULLED INGENIOUSLY.

This shows a scene on the Sussex Downs, in England. The young girl pushing her smaller brother, perhaps possessing an aviator for father, ingeniously uses a parachute to make the load lighter. Going with the wind, the parachute held by the child in the baby carriage pulls the load, the little girl has no pushing to do, the baby is delighted with the excitement of its strange "horse."

This is an experiment that ingenious American boys could make quite easily in the country—don't try it on the roof. A long piece of oiled silk, or other suitable material, cut to shape, might supply a number of boys with good, wholesome amusement.

Such a "wind horse" could pull a bicycle going in the right direction, or make walking in a high wind extremely amusing.

The important thing is that such things stimulate tho INVENTIVE FACULTY, the most important possession, in a material way, of the human mind.

Salvage

Put Those Rusting Ships to Work

The Shipping Board has many laid-up ships, products of hasty wartime building, which are not in use because too slow and cumbersome.

Studies of some of these reveal that, by reconditioning them at a cost of 40 per cent. less than the cost of new ships of equal tonnage, if built here, or 20 per cent. less than if built abroad, they can be changed into cargo liners, ready to compete with the best in their class.

Idle, they rust and rot, simply sinking money. Reconditioned, they could make useful and profitable additions to our merchant marine.

Such a chance of salvage [illegible] not be wasted.

DEMOCRACY FORGES RIGHT AHEAD

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WITH almost every practical argument in the world against it democracy has steadily forged forward.

It seems so evident, so manifest upon the face of it that most people are too ignorant to govern themselves and that many are too indifferent to perform their public duties that democracy seems doomed. Yet so dear to the heart of the average man is his liberty and his desire to rule himself and not be ruled by another that democracy is not quenched.

In Italy, and in Spain, at present, democracy is scorned as incompetent and fruitless. In most countries democracies are held responsible for the evils they support.

Yet this country, the wealthiest and most prosperous nation in the world, has demonstrated that with all its faults democracy can be successful.

Still we do not believe wholly in democracy. Or, if we do believe in it it is only as an ideal, something to be sworn by but not to be practiced. Most of us swear by it as an ideal, but we swear at it as a working model.

We have an elaborate system of checks to prevent the people from getting what they want or getting it too quickly.

We send our children to schools that are little Prussias, ruled over by little kaisers and kaiserins, alias school teachers.

If we believed thoroughly in democracy we would teach it to our children. We do not want these children to learn how to obey really, although we say we do; what we want is that they shall learn how to govern themselves, and self-government is an art. It calls for all the resources of manhood. We must be great in spirit and thoughtful in mind as well as disciplined in habit.

Every schoolroom ought to govern itself, make its own laws and carry out its own purposes.

The business of a teacher is merely to be an adviser and guide. He is not to rule in loco parentis, he is to stand by and direct. He is to be an admonishing friend and not an absolute monarch.

A considerable headway has been made in this business of self-governing schools by Wilson K. Gill. A letter lies before me signed by Alexandra L. Galeski of the Wrightman Public School of Washington, D. C., in which he speaks of "the spirit of the old, stupid, shameful monarchial system of school management" and compares it with the new system of children's conduct and she thanks God for the plan.

If we are sincere believers in democracy we ought to train our children in the business.

SUNDAY downtown is a day of restless attempts to adjust oneself to the changed appearance of the surroundings. Traffic is much less. Cars travel in both directions on one-way streets. Few bundles are seen and the crowds seem in no hurry to get anywhere.

In the evening there is preaching. Step services at the Arlington Street Church. W. H. Morgan and his Little Church on Wheels. Rev. J. J. D. Hall from Philadelphia, talking to young men. He urges them to use tobacco moderately and to abstain from vice.

After dark only few seats at the Parkman bandstand are occupied. On closer inspection, however, more are being used than seems apparent. Guests are dozing on the hard benches.

Strollers are stopped by a little, old, shabby man selling pamphlets. He sells pamphlets about everything he doesn't like.

In a "health" restaurant we count the total number of calories. Ice cream has 200, while eggs have 180. Patrons are advised to eat more bran. From the large number of smoking, thin women we see more "health" food will do no harm.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

Fear that makes faith may break faith.—Swinburne.

It is a great folly not to part with your own faults, which is always possible, but instead to try to escape from other people's faults which is impossible.—Aurelius.

Necessity, the mother of the world.—Shelly.

He that will not stoop for a pin will never be worth a pound.—Pepys.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IS America perfect? Has it any faults?

If so, have our educators a right to discuss those faults?

Or shall our children be permitted to discuss the land which they will some day inherit and govern?

You'd better think about those questions for they are looming big in our educational horizon.

Dr. Abraham Leftkowitz and two other teachers were deprived of their promotional standing by the New York Department of Education because of their "radical expressions." The sole proof upon which this charge was founded seems to be the fact that these men belong to the American Civil Liberties Union.

This organization defends not people, but the Constitution itself, against the assaults of ignorance and prejudice. It is fighting as our forefathers fought in the Revolution, for the right of lawful liberty.

Dr. Leftkowitz belongs to this organization. He believes in America and he fights for America. But he does not think that all the acts which happen in America are good acts. He believes that many of these acts are unworthy of American ideals. He discussed those acts. He allowed the young people in his classes to discuss them. For that he was denied the right of promotion. Here is part of the statement which the board of superintendents issued concerning this denial.

"A teacher may not have one set of opinions for the classroom and another for the public platform. As a school teacher he has not the same rights as other citizens to print, publish or declare his thoughts and opinions. He is no longer at liberty to 'freely write speak or publish.'"

What do YOU think of that statement? Are school teachers citizen —should they be allowed to discus the things which other citizens dis cuss?

If they are not citizens, and the may not talk as other citizens talk what is happening in our school today? What kind of people are teaching our children?

Elsie Robinson—
SHALL WE MUFFLE THE LITTLE RED SCHOOL-HOUSE?

What kind of an education do you wish YOUR child to receive?

Do you wish him taught that America is a perfect, flawless nation and that all things American are above criticism?

Or do you wish him to discuss his country, to take a personal, intelli gent interest in its struggles and victories, its mistakes and failures that he may, when his turn comes help to bring it nearer to the glorious American ideal?

How do you cast your vote?

TAKE YOUR TIME AND DEVELOP YOUR PLANS

DON'T be so anxious to get any one job done, that you do not take time to make the necessary plans.

When you have decided upon a certain course it is hard for you to restrain yourself physically.

To contemplate, is to jump, with some folk.

You may have started undertakings, yourself, which you never finished because you met obstacles that discouraged you.

Thinking out your plans before you started would have let you [illegible] perceive the difficulties and ena you to find a way to surm them.

It does not pay to be too im sive.

One of the best bits of advice given a certain golfer came fro little Italian caddy who said, "D be in such a hurry to hit the b when you start to swing for it."

This advice has its application all your undertakings.

Unpreparedly jumping at what you want to do is liable to get you into trouble.
